

Federal Reports On Crops Hailed As "Guess Work"

American Cotton Association Urges Department of Agriculture to "Stick to Facts."

Selling Price in Twelve

Cotton Recommended
at Convention.

Columbia, S. C., October 16.—Placing itself on record as disapproving the crop reports sent out by the United States department of agriculture, in which figures are given to the public purporting to show the estimated acreages to be planted to cotton, as based on reports of "intentions" of farmers to plant, the American Cotton association in its fifth annual convention today passed a resolution at its closing session urging the department of agriculture to stick to facts.

"We feel that the cotton acreage is a matter of too significant and serious concern to the growers and the cotton trade generally," the resolution stated, "for estimates on acreage planned to be hazardous by guess-work."

The resolution further urged that congress pass such legislation and provide necessary funds to enable the United States department of commerce to take a correct and dependable census each year after the cotton crop has been planted to ascertain the approximate acreage planted, on returns to be accurately filled out by every grower who plants cotton in the United States.

"These subscriptions came voluntarily without a word of solicitation," said Chairman Adams. "They furnish further illustration of the wonderful appeal of this movement to erect the world's supreme monument in memory of our Confederate ancestors."

"Many Atlanta people have under consideration the making of 'Founders Roll' subscriptions of $1,000, whereby the names of Confederate soldiers or their families will be perpetuated for all time on bronze tablets in the great Memorial hall to be quarried out of the mountain."

"As chairman of the citizens' committee I urge them to make these subscriptions this week, while our campaign is on to complete Atlanta's quota. Every 'Founders Roll' subscription made in Atlanta will go towards raising the $250,000 which Atlanta is asked to contribute—an insignificant sum compared with what the memorial will mean to our city."

"This week will virtually determine the whole future progress of the enterprise. If Atlanta does her part, the balance of Georgia, of the south and of the nation will do their part. If Atlanta lags, we cannot expect others to show any interest. The association is ready to launch a campaign to raise Georgia's quota of $250,000 outside of Atlanta as soon as Atlanta goes over the top. Therefore, it is vitally important for us to finish the work, and that is why we are anxious to have in hand before the convention closes."

Other important resolutions adopted by the convention included: Controlling cotton production by planting not more than eight acres to a plot in 1924 and that such acreage be intensively cultivated and well weeded and the "discrimination"

WELL LAID OUT

The system of numbering and naming streets in great cities has saved untold trouble for millions of persons.

Especially nowadays it would be a difficult task for you to find a business establishment or private residence if the streets were not arranged as they are.

Another great trouble saver is the system of classified advertising found in The Constitution. It can save YOU hours of useless searching for the articles you need.

What the residents of Atlanta have to offer at bargain prices are classified, and that means a saving to you of money as well as time.

So when YOU want to profit in a twofold way—start reading the classified ads in The Constitution. When you want to use an ad. of your own—call Main Five Thousand and ask for

"FOUNDERS ROLL" GIFTS ANNOUNCED AS DRIVE BEGINS

Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Campaign Chairman Asks Early Action on Others.

Three new "Founders Roll" subscriptions of $1,000 each to the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial were announced Tuesday by Albert S. Adams, chairman of the citizens committee in charge of raising Atlanta's quota of $250,000 for the memorial fund.

Two of these subscriptions are from Atlanta and one is from Columbus. The Atlanta subscriptions were by J. E. Van Valkenburg, well-known Atlanta attorney, in memory of his father, Colonel James Dunbar Van Valkenburg, who commanded the Sixty-First Georgia regiment in Gordon's brigade, and the other by the step-daughter of Captain Aaron G. Grier, another gallant Georgia officer. The name of the lady making this subscription was withheld from publication at her request, Chairman Adams stated.

The Columbus subscription of $1,000 was made by Mrs. Mary E. Cook in memory of her father and brother, James Carter Cook and James Carter Cook, Jr., both of whom served in the Confederate army.

Were Made Voluntarily. "These subscriptions came voluntarily without a word of solicitation," said Chairman Adams. "They furnish further illustration of the wonderful appeal of this movement to erect the world's supreme monument in memory of our Confederate ancestors."

Kiwanians Give Children $6,500 At Lunch Frolic

Will Sponsor Friendless Home For Another Year, Says Secretary.

Atlanta Kiwanians Tuesday set aside $6,500 for the use of the Home for the Friendless at the regular weekly luncheon which was turned into a frolic with the children of the home.

About 200 Kiwanians were guests of the 90 inmates of the home at a luncheon and entertainment at which the children were hosts.

The appropriation made was divided into $1,500 for the dental clinic and entertainment for the youngsters, and $5,000 was set aside for extension and improvement work.

"We found every child in eager anticipation of the visit of the Kiwanians," said Lee Hagan, chairman of the Home for the Friendless committee. "A musical program was furnished by the youngsters of the institution following the dinner. Kiwanians responded 100 per cent to the needs of the children. We intend to sponsor the institution for at least another year."

WOMEN PLANNING TO BAR POLITICS FROM FEDERATION

Rivalry for Offices Is Hurting Efficiency of Organization, Is View of Many Leaders.

RESOLUTION FRAMED TO RECTIFY SITUATION

Would Make Ineligible for Office Any Woman Who Announces or Campaigns for Place.

WOULD KEEP CONSTITUTION AS OFFICIAL ORGAN

By Bessie Stafford, Editor Woman's Dept. The Constitution.

Rome, Ga., October 16.—(Special.)—The executive board of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs this afternoon took action to retain The Atlanta Constitution as the official organ of the federation when it voted to rescind its former action, taken at a meeting in Macon on January 25, which recommended changes in the Georgia federation's press and publication work.

The resolution was introduced at today's meeting by Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, of Rome, past president and director for life of the Georgia Federation, and president of the Rome Woman's club. The resolution was read by Mrs. W. H. Griffin, of Atlanta, state chairman of resolutions.

Constitution Bureau, Phone 184.

BY T. J. BRYSON. Rome, Ga., October 16.—(Special.) The Georgia Federation of Women's clubs may be having its last fling at politics.

Convinced that irreparable damage has been done to the organization by the introduction of politics, because of rivalry for offices in the federation, a movement has just been launched to bar forever from the organization everything that resembles politics.

For years, it is pointed out, there was an unwritten law that the position must seek the person. This unwritten law has not been strictly observed recently, it is shown, and it is felt that damage has been done to the cause of women's work in Georgia as a result. Consequently, leaders in Georgia club work are now determined to stamp out the growing evil of political campaigns.

Drastic Resolution Planned. To do this, it is proposed to make ineligible for any office in the federation any woman who announces for the place who asks others to vote for her or for whom votes are solicited by any one. The resolution, which is reported to be in process of preparation tonight, will be as drastic as nearly "air tight" as its framers can devise. They hope to make it all but impossible for an office seeker to be eligible to hold office.

Nothing in the resolution will affect the status of any candidate for office at the present meeting, it is understood, as the provisions of the proposed rule will apply only to elections in the future.

Eliminating from one of the highest officials of the federation early this morning, the proposal has met with instant favor on every hand, report has it. There have been few dissenting voices. Nor has the commendation come from the friends of any candidate in the race, it is shown. Friends of all candidates believe that something must be done and done immediately to curb a condition which, although it came into being less than three years ago, many believe threatens the efficiency of the federation. Those who have worked hardest and longest in the federation ranks are those who are most determined that the work of years shall not be undermined by politics.

Some Opposition. There will be some opposition to the proposed measure. This much is said to be assured tonight. However, many of the very best known club women in

"They Built for Us—Let Us Build Now for Them"

SIXTY years ago Atlanta was a city of ashes, of shell-ridden homes, ruined business, desolate people, faced the future in those days. It took sheer grit to view the ruins and then to grimly smile and say: "This is our city, our people. We will build again a better city."

Had it not been for their courage, their faith in the future, their love for their city, their hopes for the generations of the future, Atlanta would have sunk back into the ashes, scarred, helpless, impotent to succeed.

THEY REMEMBERED THEIR CHILDREN and set their faces to the future. Will the children and the grandchildren of those men forget the debt they owe to the heroes of the sixties? Are they content to pocket with indifference the steady stream of dollars that flows surely from the courage and devotion of those men who built the city of today out of the ashes of yesterday?

It is not possible that any man, woman or child in Atlanta will refuse to give what he can towards carving the great memorial at Stone Mountain when he remembers those who fought, in more ways than one, that he might know peace, prosperity and happiness.

As the world's greatest art project, the supreme accomplishment of money, art and love, the memorial at Stone Mountain is centering the attention and interest of the world; but to Atlanta its appeal lies in the fact that it will perpetuate as long as time endures the memory of the men and women of the sixties.

This week the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association is appealing to the people of Atlanta to give their share towards making the memories of the Confederacy a perpetuity in stone. The association knows full well that the sons and daughters, the grandchildren of the men who wore the grey—of the heroes who took a city in ruins and made of it the center of the south's achievement—will not forget.

THEY BUILT FOR US. LET US NOW BUILD FOR THEM.

Tilled Soil Over the Grave Of Brother He Slew, Charge

GEORGIAN ARRESTED ON MURDER WARRANT

Douglas, Ga., October 16.—L. S. Rogers, a former mill hand at the Garrant Lumber company plant at Avon Park, Fla., on the charge of murdering his brother, John Alton Rogers, 42 years old in this country on November 18, 1922.

According to Coffee county officers, who released the details of the crime coincident with Rogers' arrest in Florida, L. S. Rogers killed his brother by shooting him through the head with a pistol and buried his body with part of a quilt wrapped around the face in a cornfield. He, according to the officers, then reported that his brother had deserted his family. The accused man then cultivated a crop and ploughed over the body of his dead brother until about a month ago when the officers say, he took the widow of his brother and went to Florida.

According to the information of the officers, L. S. Rogers confessed to a friend some weeks ago that he had killed his brother and buried his body in the cornfield. After he had gone to Florida, the friend reported the conversation to one of the officers and the story reached the officers of the Coffee county, who went to the farm last Sunday and dug up the body. The officers say the body was identified by means of gold teeth of the deceased. The skeleton was brought to Douglas.

Upon notification of the arrest of Rogers and his brother's widow at Avon today, Sheriff Tanner, of Coffee county, left for the Florida town to bring the prisoners back to Douglas to be tried for murder under an indictment returned Monday. The dead man's wife was formerly a Miss Yarbrough, of West Green.

COOLIDGE WARNED "WETS" MAY BRING DEFEAT TO G. O. P.

William Allen White Tells President That Republicans Are Now Facing Loss of the West.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. Washington, October 16.—Such a row has been stirred by Governor Pinchot that President Coolidge is finding it advisable to assert his leadership in the dry issue at once. He will make a statement to the nation in connection with the governors' conference here Saturday.

This is a departure from his policy of keeping silent until he delivers his first message to congress in December. It has been made necessary by the nationwide commotion that has resulted from Pinchot's charge that prohibition enforcement is being hampered by politicians.

President Coolidge has been warned by William Allen White, Kansas political sage, that the Republican party will lose the west unless prohibition is saved from corruption by passing which enables wet republicans to name prohibition officers in their respective states. Coolidge must break with these wet senators or lose the west, in White's opinion. The Kansas attorney conferred with President Coolidge before Tuesday's cabinet meeting and returned for dinner at night.

Paralleling his famous piece on "What's the Matter With Kansas?" White issued a statement on "What's the Matter With Prohibition?" "The federal administration is handicapped by a system which permits appointment of federal prohibition enforcement officers in the states," White said. "If the senator is wet, he appoints wet enforcers, or if the sentiment of the state is wet, as may be in the north Atlantic seaboard states, the senator appoints wet enforcers, and the governors of those states are tied hand and foot by these wet federal enforcers."

Corrupt System. "It is not President Coolidge. It is not President Harding. It is the miserable corrupt system of piecemeal making the lawmaking branch of government, which is unconstitutional as well as wicked."

"Now then—the prohibition law has created a situation unique. It cannot be enforced by the federal government under the system of patronage now prevailing unless the president of the United States does one of two things: Either purges righteousness and the fear of God into the wet senators, or breaks with them."

"Neither alternative is easy. It will require courage, audacity and great political skill in any case. But unless the president uses these qualities, federal enforcement in the east will continue to be a farce, and if it is, the republican party in the west is lost."

"But—don't forget this! When President Coolidge finishes the episode—either breaking with the republican organization in wet states or breaking it—he will have developed those priceless qualities of heart and mind which will make the people forget that they ever discredited him by calling him 'Cautious Cal.'"

Guest of Dawes. Later Mr. Lloyd George went to his hotel to remain quietly this evening, excusing himself from a private dinner given by Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, former director of the federal budget, because of fatigue

Autocratic Wave Causes Warning By Lloyd George

Chicago, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Five years after the world war Democracy, which in 1918 won a great victory over autocracy, is in peril, David Lloyd George, the wartime premier of Great Britain declared in a luncheon address here today. A wave of autocracy seems to be sweeping over the world, he declared, but against it the United States, Great Britain and France will stand together.

"Russia threw over democracy a few months after starting the experiment," the former premier asserted. "Italy, Spain, Bulgaria and now Germany is talking about a dictatorship. Democracy is in peril. In ten years after the greatest triumph democracy has ever had, 'Why is democracy more sure, safer? It is slower to begin, it does not bring its forces into action in the way perhaps an autocracy does, but in a struggle it is the heart that tells, and democracy sustains the heart, and what happens is that democratic institutions alone can produce and train men that are able to appeal to nations, to rise to the heights of sacrifice which are the last citadels of freedom in all lands."

Will Stand Together. "Now, when democracy is in danger, when I can see the throne of democracy tumbling in one land after another, here you have a land of democracy. Britain is the land of democracy, and France, I believe, will stand by democracy, and, whatever happens, these three great lands together will stand against this wave of autocracy which seems to be sweeping over the world."

The arrival of the distinguished visitor in the city was marked by a great demonstration. Met at the station by a reception committee headed by Mayor Dyer, Lloyd George was taken upon a drive through the loop section, preceded by a band from the Great Lakes naval training station, and an escort of cavalry, and flanked and followed by mounted police and official cars. Crowds packed the sidewalks while others hung on windows and other places of vantage high up on the buildings. Confetti and streamers filled the air, while there was a continuous roar of welcome as the automobile bearing the former premier with bared head passed through the streets.

Lloyd George was tendered a luncheon this noon by the Chicago Association of Commerce where several hundred more applauded his appearance. It was in response to official speeches of welcome in behalf of the city and of the citizens by Mayor Dyer and association officials that he delivered his address of the day.

GAS REPAYMENTS START JANUARY 1, ARKWRIGHT SAYS

Judge Sibley's Order on Tuesday Puts Low Gas Rate Into Immediate Effect for October Bills.

BOOKKEEPING DELAYS
PAYING OF REBATE

60,000 Checks Are To Be Made in Settling Difference Between $1.65 Old and $1.55 New Rate.

Owing to the tremendous amount of book work involving the writing of sixty thousand checks it will probably be January 1 before gas consumers will receive rebates from the Atlanta Gas Light company, as was prescribed in a ruling handed down last Friday by the United States supreme court, according to Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company and Atlanta Gas Light company, Tuesday.

Mr. Arkwright's statement followed action by Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley Tuesday in signing an order putting the supreme court mandate into effect immediately. Judge J. J. Reagan, attorney for the Georgia public service commission, presented the order to Judge Sibley, which stipulates that a refund of 10 cents on all gas consumed at the rate of 1,000 feet since January 1, 1922, be made to consumers.

Check Each Account. "The new gas rate of $1.55 per 1,000 cubic feet, as fixed by the Georgia public service commission and sustained by the supreme court, will become effective immediately, and the new rate will be observed in the October gas accounts, I doubt, however, if we can possibly get all the book work in shape to issue the rebate checks before the first of the year."

Case Started in 1921. The mandate was returned last Friday by the supreme court, following a long legal controversy which originated here in 1921.

The Georgia public service commission had issued an order which was appealed to the supreme court, reducing the gas rate from $1.65 to $1.55 per 1,000 cubic feet. An interlocutory injunction was sought by the gas company, but three judges who sat on the case denied the plea for the restraining order.

Ontario Police Deny Responsibility for U. S. "Moisture."

Toronto, October 16.—Americans are directing virtually the entire Canadian-American rum running industry, according to a statement by General Vas Williams, commissioner of the Ontario provincial police, appearing today in the Toronto Evening Telegram in refutation of the charge that Canadian bootleggers were keeping the United States moist.

"They are practically all Americans," said General Williams. "If I had control of policing the highways of the province I would seize six or seven American automobiles every day, engaged in this trade. As it is, we caught four New York state automobiles just recently engaged in rum running."

"As for the boat trade, I have seen with my own eyes the situation at Windsor border. I have seen Detroit-owned launches come over to our side, land at Petite Cote, load up with liquor and beer and go back to their home city."

"I am told that American officials do not want to stop this trade. If they do want to, why on earth don't they do it?"

"The business is managed, operated and financed by their own citizens, who use motor boats and automobiles of United States ownership. Surely they should have some responsibility in controlling the situation."

EFFORTS TO STOP RUSH OF IMMIGRANT SHIPS IS PLANNED

Washington, October 16.—Efforts to prevent the recurring monthly rush of immigrant transports to American ports will be made by Chairman Farley, of the shipping board, at the forthcoming trans-Atlantic passenger conference in London, it was announced today. Mr. Farley will sail from New York Saturday on the Leithan.

GASOLINE REDUCED
BY ALL CONCERNS
EFFECTIVE TODAY

Gulf Company's Reduction Met by Dunham, Standard and Reed—Brings Retail Price to 20 Cents.

Before Atlanta motorists had begun to enjoy the announcement of the Gulf Refining company that a 2-cent reduction in gasoline would go into effect Tuesday at midnight, it was made known by officials of the Dunham oil company, the Standard Oil company and the Reed Oil company, Tuesday night, that their companies would take similar action. The reduction will affect all sales of gas, wholesale and retail. A 2-cent reduction means that gasoline will be sold at 20 cents at service stations, including the three-cent state tax.

The announcement that the Gulf Refining company would make a reduction was made Tuesday by Charles E. Sheppard, district sales manager, who declared the cut would be effective in 24 states in which his company operates. The primary purposes, Mr. Sheppard stated are to stabilize production and stimulate sales.

J. S. Jones, superintendent of the local branch of the Texas Oil company, stated Tuesday night that he was not aware of any cut in their prices.

It is believed that the majority of oil companies will make a similar reduction to meet that of the Gulf company.

Two Are Killed. The known dead list stood at two, but city officials and members of rescue crews declared it probably would be greater when the receding waters make possible a thorough search of the flooded areas.

The dead thus far known are Mrs. R. H. Loose and her daughter, Clara, 8 years old, who were drowned when a boat in which they attempted to gain land, after tarrying in an effort to save their personal effects, was caught in the mill race at Wheeler Park, a municipal reservoir, and capsized.

Loose and another daughter, Bessie, 10, were rescued from the top of a large tree into which they had climbed when the boat went over. They had been there 12 hours when a skiff, driven by two intrepid oarsmen, finally nosed its way among the trees in the park and brought them to safety. Loose was taken to a hospital where his condition was pronounced serious as a result of exposure.

Rescue squads were still working at top speed tonight. A negro family brought to land waters told their tale of racing against the elements that crumbled away from the end of rescuers that at least 75 other grooves were marooned on the brow of a hill, the only unsubmerged spot on what had been a negro settlement. They were reported without food or water, and efforts were being continued to bring them to safety.

Water Is Falling. At the city reservoir, where a break in a retaining wall precipitated the unprecedented flood upon the city, the water started falling tonight, with the 2,000-acre reservoir nearly two-thirds drained.

Bonus of Ten Billion Marks, Free Fuel and Food Are Demands of Unemployed.

Berlin, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The food riots which have been going on in greater Berlin for the past ten days culminated this morning and this afternoon in serious outbreaks in the heart of the city. Mobs estimated to aggregate 10,000 unemployed accompanied by women and youths, besieged the town hall in the heart of the eastern section of the capital and the rioting which followed continued intermittently for four hours and was quelled only after police reinforcements used their bayonets and fired volleys to awe the crowds.

The immediate provocation for today's outbreak was the abolition of the official bread card. This resulted in a sudden rise in the price of the 1-1/2-pound loaf to 480,000 marks, or about 12 cents as compared with Monday's price of 36,000 marks, which was effective when the bread riots were in progress.

The police report that five demonstrators were seriously hurt and a score slightly wounded during the disorders. One of the wounded in the rioting near the town hall died this afternoon. Some reports estimate that 20 persons were wounded when the police fired into the crowds.

A bonus of ten billion marks for each of the unemployed, free fuel and food were among the demands made by the demonstrators.

SKULL OF TAXI DRIVER FRACTURED BY PASSENGERS

Death of Harry Mabry, 22 was expected early Wednesday morning at Grady hospital from a fractured skull, the result of a supposed assault near Decatur by two unidentified men in a taxi of which Mabry was driver. Mabry is said to have driven the automobile to the hospital after the assault. He is a driver for the Murray Taxi company.

Officials said that Mabry answered a call about 12 o'clock Tuesday night from a man who gave his name as Jones, and who said he was at the Oliver hotel, at Pryor and Houston streets. Two men got into the car, and Mabry said at the hospital that the next thing he knew had been attacked. A hammer, left in the car with two shirts and a pair of trousers, is thought to have been the weapon used. An old Colts revolver was found in the back seat of the taxi.

Manila, October 17.—(By Associated Press.)—Two school teachers, one supervising teacher, one lieutenant, a sergeant and eight privates of the Philippine constabulary were killed by Moros last Sunday at a school house at Lake Buluan, Lanao province, Island of Mindanao, according to advices received here. The aid of United States troops has been asked.

WOMAN AND DAUGHTER MEET DEATH IN FLOOD

Officials Believe That Many More Have Been Drowned—Many Stories of Heroism Told.

Oklahoma City, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Slowly receding overflow waters of the North Canadian river tonight laid bare a stark, desolate water-choked waste in the lowlands of Oklahoma City's south side, which was inundated early today by the worst flood in the state's history.

The total damage is placed at $2,500,000 in preliminary estimates of city officials.

With scores suffering from exposure, authorities tonight are penetrating still farther into the stricken area to rescue many who were marooned when the torrent lashed furiously down upon their homes.

More than 2,000 of the 15,000 persons who fled before the onrush of the water still were homeless tonight. They are quartered in halls and churches throughout the city. The remainder of the host had returned to their homes by means of vehicles that passed, often hulk deep through streets still filled with backwater.

The known dead list stood at two, but city officials and members of rescue crews declared it probably would be greater when the receding waters make possible a thorough search of the flooded areas.

Dr. Jacobs Abandons Plan To Move Oglethorpe's Bones

Cranham, England, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—General Oglethorpe, founder of the state of Georgia, like the Indian Princess Pocahontas and his more distant and remote precursor, Tutankhamen, is to remain in his original burying place. Yielding to British public opinion which had almost reached the point of unanimity, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, today abandoned his project to transport the Georgia hero's ashes to America.

The hue and cry raised throughout England that Americans desired to take possession of the bones of England's distinguished dead, as well as its most prized art object and reliquary, is thus silenced.

Dr. Jacobs accepted defeat with true southern grace and deference. He feels at least that one result of his excavations is to make General Oglethorpe a world figure, and not merely the builder of a single state. Indictive of his great spirit of reverence for the famous general was his last act this afternoon in returning to the rector of All-Saints' church a small fragment of General Oglethorpe's coffin which had dropped off in the course of his one hundred and thirty-eight years' interment and which Dr. Jacobs intended to preserve as a memento. This was immediately deposited in the grave and the vault closed forever.

Counsel Against Removal. It is an interesting coincidence that both the Reverend Leslie Wright, rector of the church, and Robert P. Skinner, the American consul general, who gave Dr. Jacobs most sympathetic aid and counsel from the beginning, decided even before they saw Dr. Jacobs today to counsel him against pursuing the enterprise further, in view of the growing British resentment. One of the things which most influenced the president of Oglethorpe university to give up his mission was a petition to King George from James Oglethorpe, a great-grand-nephew of the general, asking his sovereign lord to protect the ashes of one who loyally served his majesty's predecessor, George II. Dr. Jacobs also felt that if the matter were pursued to the end it might place the state department at Washington which had endorsed the idea, and the governor and congressmen of Georgia in an awkward position in their attitude toward England.

Will Remember Founder. But while Dr. Jacobs has relinquished the plan of bringing the body of General Oglethorpe across the ocean, he is resolved that the founder of Georgia shall be substantially remembered by Americans in his present resting place. If the English ecclesiastical authorities agree, Dr. Jacobs intends to convert the present parish church, in which General Oglethorpe's wife is also buried, as well as the manor house near by, in which the general lived and died, into a great national shrine, where the youth of the south and American visitors interested in the early history of the United States may make pilgrimages to do honor to the memory of Georgia's first citizen.

A university extension course embracing the principles and ideals of General Oglethorpe, as well as his humanities, will be taught and the students will learn something of the atmosphere in which he moved and had his being. It may be possible to purchase the church and manor house outright, in which case it would become the property of Oglethorpe university. Rector Wright, who feels strongly that General Oglethorpe should be lifted out of his present obscurity, is known to be favorable to this project.

Late this afternoon the Rev. Mr. Wright received a long cablegram from Congressman Upshaw thanking him for his support of the plan to send the body to Atlanta, saying that the pride and patriotism of all true Americans were touched by his friendly support.

Jacobs' Statement. "The purpose of our request was twofold: First, that the grave of our founder, the exact location of which had actually been forgotten in England, might be made a center of instruction for our youth in the great principles upon which General Oglethorpe founded our community, thus serving as a holy sanctuary of Georgian patriotism.

"The second purpose was our desire to make him and his sacred memory an eternal tie of good will between England and America.

"It is this last purpose that seems at present impossible of realization. As the first is already partly accomplished, we now know where Oglethorpe is buried definitely and by the gracious courtesies of the English people Oglethorpe university will endeavor to see that this grave is forever remembered.

"Also if the little church at Cranham will permit us to do so, we shall endeavor in the future to show it and its rector what the love of millions of Georgians means for their kindly sentiment and unanimous approval. They will never be forgotten in Georgia.

"I take this opportunity of thanking the English friends of our plan, including many members of the Oglethorpe family, and of assuring them that an enterprise endorsed for the Georgians' capital city by its mayor, for the state by its governor and transmitted through the state department in Washington could have had only one actuating motive—that of the deepest love and affection for the forgotten founder of Georgia to whom after centuries of centuries England has raised no monument."

Rector Advised Abandonment. It is learned that Dr. Jacobs was advised by Rev. Leslie Wright, rector of the Cranham church, to abandon the project of the growing opposition to the removal of the body. Dr. Jacobs also undoubtedly was influenced by the strong opposition of the English people and the action of a descendant of Oglethorpe in appealing to the king to protect the ashes of his ancestor. Further, it was feared that if the project were prosecuted to the end it might embarrass the state department at Washington. The vault containing the bodies of General Oglethorpe and his wife will be resealed immediately and the floor of the church replaced.

LONDON TIMES OPPOSES PROJECT. London, October 16.—Referring to the protest made by the Episcopal bishop of Georgia to the removal of General Oglethorpe's body, The Times says today: "This should prove the end of the project."

The Times hitherto has expressed no opinion regarding the transfer of the general's body to America, but in its editorial this morning makes an emphatic protest against such a step.

WATKINS IS GRATEFUL OVER ACTION OF JACOBS. Edgar Watkins, president of the board of trustees of Oglethorpe university, Tuesday expressed gratification over the action of Dr. Jacobs in withdrawing his request for the removal of General and Lady Oglethorpe's bodies from England rather than cause a controversy over the removal. Mr. Watkins' statement is as follows: "Jacobs cables this morning that he has withdrawn the request of Oglethorpe university to be permitted to remove the bodies of General Oglethorpe and his wife to the university campus.

"This action was made necessary by the fact that an unseemly controversy had arisen and Dr. Jacobs' reverence for the memory of the great founder of our state is such that he preferred to withdraw the application rather than be the occasion of such a controversy.

"A great purpose would have been served could the body of Oglethorpe have been placed on Georgia soil and on the campus of a university bearing his name. Closer sympathy between England and America would have been promoted, and a shrine at which patriotic Georgians would have reverently paid tribute would have been established.

"The great idea was conceived by Dr. Jacobs more than a year ago, and he has been earnestly pursuing it. That he has withdrawn the application but proves his greatness and his reverence for the great dead. The place of the agents will be taken by one or more 'leading agents' and supervision of the ships will be taken over directly by the board.

Shipping Board Makes Sweeping Changes in Plans. Washington, October 16.—Decision to consolidate the five North Atlantic-United Kingdom Trade routes and to eliminate entirely the managing agent system now in use upon them was announced today by the shipping board. The place of the agents will be taken by one or more 'leading agents' and supervision of the ships will be taken over directly by the board.

Supervision of the United States lines have been placed by the board in the hands of a committee composed of Commissioners O'Connor, Plummer and Benson, who will act in the capacity of a board of directors. The new plan was said by officials of the board to make the United States lines "practically a separate subsidiary of the Emergency fleet corporation."

L. J. Lovens, resigned as general manager of the emergency fleet corporation to become general manager of the Emergency fleet corporation, is expected to be transferred to the United States lines in an executive capacity.

Although he will give up his active position with the shipping board, Mr. Love is expected to continue to serve as vice president after he becomes managing director of the new organization. Mr. Rosbottom, who has represented the board with the United States lines for some time, is said to be slated for head of the operation department under the new management.

In that capacity he will have supervision of maintenance and repair of ships, victualing and supply and other functions now handled by the managing agents.

A freight traffic manager and passenger manager are yet to be appointed. The treasurer of the Emergency fleet corporation will serve as treasurer of the United States lines and the fleet controller will have charge of accounts.

Consolidated Routes. The place of the "agents" of the five routes will be taken by one or more "leading agents" and supervision of the ships will be taken over directly by the board.

Probable Solution. A problem of the government merchant fleet was seen by board officials in the new plan which was said to be designed as an experiment. Upon its success and the returns shown by managing agents of other routes will depend the extension of the new scheme, it was stated officially.

Considerable reduction is contemplated in the number of ships now being operated upon the five routes but Chairman Farley emphasized that this would not be carried far enough to hamper the service. A new trade name will be taken for the consolidated routes, the North Atlantic-United Kingdom line having already received favorable consideration.

Lines Wiped Out. The lines wiped out by the consolidation include the Blake Steamship company, Baltimore Oceanic and Hampton port Transportation company and the Moore & McCormick company, serving routes from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Hampton Roads to the United Kingdom.

The principal change effected by the new scheme, Chairman Farley explained, places the expenditures of funds appropriated by congress directly under the supervision of public officials authorized to handle it. Simplifying and booking of freight, handling of freight at terminals and its embarkation upon ship will be left in the hands of the "leading agents" who will serve under contract and receive compensation on a straight commission basis.

"Many of the present managing operators are well qualified to handle this freight on a competitive basis," Mr. Farley said. "And it is the intention of the board to utilize as far as possible the experience and services of such operators."

"As would be the case in private business, the contracts provide for modification as experiences show desirable, and they can be terminated at the board's direction upon reasonable notice."

PALATKA COUNCILMEN CITED FOR CONTEMPT. Palatka, Fla., October 16.—Eighteen members of the city council of Palatka were cited to appear before Circuit Judge E. C. E. Keene at Tavares on October 22 to show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court for failure to post additional bonds in the litigation now pending between the city and the Southern Utilities company which furnishes the electric power for Palatka.

The utility company was charging 15 cents per kilowatt for electric current here, a special rate granted during the war while its franchise only gave the right to charge 10 cents. The council refused to permit continuance of the wartime charges and secured an injunction. Pending its final outcome the court ordered the city to post bond to protect the utility company.

Application was made to Judge Keene some weeks ago to have the city increase this bond and the city took the case to the supreme court where the case is now pending. The supreme court denied the writ Satare is said.

1 DEAD, 20 INJURED IN BERLIN RIOTS

Berlin, October 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Several thousand unemployed attempted to storm the Rathaus, or town hall, in the heart of the city this morning, but were repulsed by the police, who charged the mob with fixed bayonets.

The demonstration, which the authorities say was led by communist agitators, completely blocked traffic in what is normally one of the most congested quarters of the city and forced numerous shops to pull down their iron shutters as a protection against looters.

Congregating mobs in the outlying sections of the greater Berlin kept the police busy all the forenoon. At one point the police were forced to fire into the crowd, seriously wounding three demonstrators.

Renewed food riots are reported from numerous points in Germany. A serious clash occurred in Mannheim where one police sergeant and one demonstrator were killed.

Leipzig was the scene of renewed rioting and many of the shopkeepers chose to give away bread and oleomargarine in preference to having their premises looted. The police are guarding the market halls, while most of the shops in the heart of the city either have cleared their show windows of all displays or shut down completely.

The trouble arose over the food situation. The crowds of unemployed which appeared before the city hall demanded to see the burgomaster. The police disputed this crowd, but it was later joined by reinforcements from the side streets and the guard finally had to use revolvers to scatter

it. All the shops in the neighborhood of the municipal building were closed.

One of the demonstrators who was wounded in the shooting near the town hall died this afternoon. Latest reports are that twenty persons were wounded through the police firing into the crowds.

Among the demands made by the unemployed were a bonus of 10,000,000 marks each, free food and free fuel.

London, October 16.—A mob tried to force its way into the Berlin stock exchange this morning, says a Central News dispatch from the German capital. The doors were promptly closed and the police took up the task of dealing with the attacking throngs.

The mob also tried to storm the city hall, the message states, but the police appeared in strong force and seemed to be masters of the situation after fierce fighting in which a number of persons were injured, several seriously. For the moment, adds the message, the city hall and the stock exchange have been locked and strongly guarded and the Wilhelmstrasse closed to pedestrians and vehicles.

Paris, October 16.—Herr von Hoesch, German charge d'affaires, has been granted an interview with Premier Poincaré tomorrow.

for reinforcement of the dyke had been left before the flood, and Joe H. Patterson, city commissioner of public property, and Bert M. Hart, city engineer, are in New York conferring with engineers drawing up plans for the work. Details of the break were telegraphed to them today and the plans will be altered to include its repair.

No estimate of the damage could be made, but one city official said that it will run into the hundreds of thousands.

With the lake draining, pumps today were turned directly into the river and the city water supply was maintained.

The city garbage department today began the cremation of the bodies of hundreds of head of live stock that were washed into the city.

Fifteen hundred head of hogs were lost by one shipper alone when they were caught in loading pens in the edge of the city, after a railroad had been unable to move them because of washed-out tracks nearby.

Stories of heroism.

Many stories of heroism are recounted as the work of rescuing the marooned continued. One of the most vivid, perhaps, was that of Gordon Chapman, city engineer, who gave his place in a rescue boat to a sick woman while he remained in the path of the flood and took his chance on being picked up. With two companions he had rowed far into the eddying sea that had engulfed Walnut Grove, one of the lowland districts. Discovering the woman in a house alone he placed her in the boat and his companions returned with her to shore. Chapman swam to a two-story frame school house, the highest building in the district, and went to the second floor. The rising water forced him into the attic where he found an aged man.

The water continued to climb and with the waves running knee deep where he stood, Chapman hacked a hole in the roof with his pocket knife, assisted the aged man through and they straddled the ridge of the roof until rescue men sighted them and brought them to land.

Late today all national guards with the exception of medical units were relieved from duty here and patrolling of the areas bordering the flooded districts was turned over to the city police.

Along the crest of the flood past Oklahoma City, residents of the lowlands in Shawnee and other cities south of here were preparing tonight to leave their homes.

Small Damage by Storm.

New Orleans, La., October 16.—The gulf storm bureau as central approximately 200 miles east of Corpus Christi, Texas, and which moved rapidly northeast during the night, talking on hurricane proportions, apparently passed inland somewhere east of New Orleans and today lost its force as it sped overland. Damage along the coast apparently was small. Gulfport, Miss., reported a tide of seven feet accompanied by the height of the gale, which reached sixty miles an hour at that point, but shipping had been warned and casualties in the harbor were confined to the swamping of small boats. The traction line operating along the beach between Gulfport and Biloxi was reported damaged to the extent of $35,000.

Train service on the Louisville and Nashville railroad between New Orleans and the Mississippi coast was discontinued for a time by several small washouts, officials reported. These were at both approaches to the Biloxi-Ocean Springs bridge and at the north approach of the Bay St. Louis bridge, in Mississippi.

No Damage in Mobile. Mobile, Ala., October 16.—Mobile experienced no damage of a serious nature from the tropical hurricane that struck this city early Monday, although the wind at one time reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour. This figure was reached at 7 o'clock Monday morning, but the gale did not blow at this rate for any extended length of time, but in gusty puffs. A rainfall of 1.78 inches, comparatively light, was recorded, although a heavy downpour set in tonight. The lowest barometer reading was 29.53. The glass touched this figure early Monday morning and then gradually started its climb back to normal.

"Our campaign teams spent a busy day canvassing business firms today. They have everywhere met with a favorable response, but have encountered a tendency toward small subscriptions."

"Atlanta Won't Fail." "If we had to raise this quota in subscriptions of $5 and 10 it would take 500 workers 60 days to complete the job. We can put over a tag day with small change, but we cannot put over our quota for the memorial that way."

AUTOCRATIC WAVE CAUSES WARNING

caused by his strenuous program today. The distinguished visitor plans to spend tomorrow quietly at his hotel or on private sight-seeing tours of the city, but tomorrow night will deliver a formal public address at a mass meeting. He will leave for Springfield Thursday.

Mentioning in his luncheon address a visit in the late spring of 1918 to the front behind Amiens just after the great German onslaught had been definitely checked and the enemy rolled back, Lloyd George told how he had met Australian and Illinois troops who had broken the spearhead of the German attack.

"I ventured to tell them then," he said, "that Germany might have peace that day, that hour, if she accepted the conditions laid down by the president of the United States of America. They didn't. They went on fighting for months, got nothing out of it but complete demoralization, complete disaster. They put themselves in a position where it was impossible for them to negotiate and that I consider to be bad for both parties. . . ."

Courage Was Needed. "When the time came when Germany ought to have realized that the game was up, that defeat was staring her in the face, she certainly ought to have made peace, but why didn't she do it? I will tell you. It requires more courage to make peace than to make war."

"Germany's disaster was not due to the lack of valor or skill in her troops, as valiant men, as intelligent men as ever went into action. . . . but the failure was in the lack of vision, courage, leadership of the rulers, and this is not without its meaning now when democracy has been thrown over in one country after another in Europe as if it were a thing of no use."

"Democracy in that great world struggle defeated autocracy every time. Now and again it throws up big men. It is a gamble. You can't depend upon it. There was no one to rally the courage, the reserves, the resources of the German heart when the hour of disaster came. No democracy would have ever failed like that. It is a lesson."

READY ROOFINGS

Workmen instantly recognize their quality.

An experienced workman can easily recognize any Carey roofing after the wrappers from the rolls are thrown away.

Compared with roll goods of equal weight, there is a toughness that distinguishes the Carey product.

It is the quality of the rag and the percentage of wool in the felt that not only makes it tougher, but causes the felt to absorb more asphalt saturant.

To insure superior felt, the rags are sorted right in the Carey plant, and all felt used in Carey roofing is made according to Carey tested specifications in the Carey factory.

Hence, it is only natural that this tougher, better-saturated Carey roofing should give the longer service for which it is famous.

"If You Seek His Monument—"

Sir Christopher Wren, the famous architect who in 1670 designed the mighty dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is commemorated in a most unusual way. There is a bronze tablet on the cathedral wall which displays the inscription,

"Reader, if you seek his monument, look around."

Year after year we have been working for the fulfillment of our vision of the South—a region prosperous, progressive, held in high esteem by the nation, a good place for the safe investment of outside capital in buildings needed to house the South's growing millions of population. Structures of beauty and utility, standing in many a Southern city, are enduring monuments to the faith and enterprise of the men and women, North and South, East and West, who bought Miller Bonds in order that money might be available for the work of construction.

Recently, when business was unsettled and depression reigned throughout the country, many investment bankers reported that the stream of capital seemed to be dried up at its source. Confidence had been shaken and investors refused to place their money in fluctuating securities. But the sales of Miller Bonds, which do not fluctuate, went right on increasing in volume—

Because investors were convinced of the essential soundness of the South—of its potential prosperity—of the industry of its people—of the intelligence and skill of its bankers, manufacturers, planters, and business leaders.

And—Because investors knew that Miller Bonds, issued to finance the best types of income-earning structures in Southern cities, had a record of "never a dollar's loss to any investor in principal or interest."

Living monuments, in the shape of apartment structures, hotels and commercial buildings, must rest on a firm foundation of good faith and security. Therefore, our steadfast purpose has been to make Miller Bonds worthy representatives of the South in their sturdy qualities of safety and desirability as investments.

GARRETT ON TRIAL AGAIN FOR MURDER

Cumberland Courthouse, Va., October 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Robert O. Garrett went on trial today for the second time in Cumberland county circuit court, of which he is clerk, for the killing last June 5 of Reverend Edward Sylvester Pierce, Baptist minister. Unlike previous efforts to get the now noted case to trial rapid progress was made today. Most of the legal technicalities that had delayed previous hearings had been disposed of and efforts to renew them this morning were blocked by Judge B. D. White, presiding, when he denied all motions and ordered the trial to proceed.

A jury to try Robert Garrett, one of the two brothers jointly indicted for murder in the first degree as a result of the Pierce shooting—Larkin C. Garrett's trial last August having ended in a mistrial—was obtained from a venire of sixty Southampton county citizens in a little more than 2 hours.

All witnesses heard today had testified in the previous trial of Robert Garrett as well as at the trial of Larkin Garrett. Their testimony was substantially the same as given on the previous occasions. Dr. W. L. Varne, Cumberland physician who conducted the autopsy after the Pierce killing, and J. P. Doyle, Farmville undertaker, who prepared the body for burial, described the wounds they found on the clergyman's body. Dr. Varne said on cross examination that he had found no wound on the face that could not have been made by a man's fist. Mr. Doyle testified the minister's nose was broken and there was a dent in his forehead.

Mrs. John Godsey and Mrs. Ellen Danby testified they had their attention attracted to the Pierce home by the screams of Mrs. Pierce and saw J. C. Garrett and the minister fighting. Neither saw the minister fight followed. Both women emphasized the bloody condition of Mr. Pierce's face after the fight. George Martin, a carpenter, said he saw R. O. Garrett fire but that if Mr. Pierce fired he did not see him.

McPHERSON COMPANY WILL RETURN TODAY

Fort McPherson's composite company, picked from the Twenty-second infantry, will return this morning to the post after staging an exhibition drill at the Spaulding county fair at Griffin Tuesday. The company is commanded by Captain A. L. Bole and is composed of eight of the best-drilled men from each company in the regiment.

BANDIT GETS $601; WOULD-BE THUGS BEATEN IN FIGHT

F. G. Brown, of 25 West avenue, was late Monday held up in the dark Powell street underpass and robbed of $601, according to reports made Tuesday to police. Brown said that his assailant was a negro, who covered him with a pistol and forced him to surrender the money. He was unable to furnish the police a description of the negro because of the darkness.

Bleeding freely from knife wounds in the right shoulder, Gester Jones, 19, of 151 Luckie street, about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning appeared at Grady hospital and reported that he had been the victim of an attempt at robbery by two highwaymen whom he had successfully repulsed. Physicians reported that the wound was not dangerous and that no serious results are expected.

"I was driving home on James street and the two men hailed me," said Jones. "I thought they wanted a lift and allowed up. When they leaped on the side of the car they began beating me. I reached on the floor and got a piece of an automobile tire and struck them with it. They saw that they had to fight and they left the car after one of them had cut me."

GIRL TO SURVIVE BEING CRUSHED BY RUNAWAY CAR

Fourteen-year-old Mary Margaret Segar, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Segar, of West Haven, is recovering at Grady hospital from injuries sustained in a collision between two motor vehicles early Tuesday morning which planned her between one of the trucks and a brick wall.

The young girl was on her way to school at the time of the accident, which occurred on Trinity avenue. She was in the act of passing the rear of a truck loading furniture at the warehouse of the Empire Furniture company when another truck backed into the parked one, forcing it backwards onto the sidewalk. The girl was pinned between the rear of the truck and the brick wall of the building.

Allen Porter, negro driver of the truck which ran backwards into the standing machine, is being held without bond by the police, pending the outcome of the little girl's injuries.

Suicide was the verdict of the coroner's jury Tuesday investigating the death of J. W. Johnson, 65, of 73 Adair avenue, who Monday evening shot himself in the head in the entrance to H. M. Patterson & Son undertaking parlor.

A .28 caliber pistol was still in his hand when several men rushed to his fallen body. No note or other explanation was left, so far as had been learned Tuesday. A large crowd was passing along the street at the time the shot was fired, but so far as could be learned, no one saw the shooting.

Johnson, who was a retired business man, is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. M. Ogden, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. Bena J. Gardner, of Atlanta; Mrs. A. Austin Haskell, of Seattle, Wash.; and Miss Cora Johnson, of Atlanta; a son, D. C. Johnson, of Atlanta; and a step-son, R. A. Matthews, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Society Drinking Chief Difficulty In Dry Law Path

Washington, October 16.—Drinking in high society is the chief difficulty in the way of making prohibition effective, in the opinion of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

Praising the work of the citizenship conference, Haynes said it would help to stir local officials in assisting in enforcement, particularly in watching petty bootleggers and blind tigers.

"A close analysis of the proceedings reveals absolute unanimity of opinion that the most outstanding difficulty in the way of enforcement today is the non-observance of the law among a small minority, but nevertheless a very influential group of citizens at the very apex of the social scale," Haynes said.

"The bitter condemnation of such leaders in social, professional, commercial and industrial phases of our busy American life, who by their example have retarded a more general observance in other groups, and the strong appeal made to them by the constitution will, without question, result in the awakening of new currents of thought and higher American idealism to the end that the constitution will be revered."

PINCHOT MAKES RETORT COURTEOUS TO HENRY J. ALLEN

Harrisburg, Pa., October 16.—The address of Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas in Washington last night, in which he took issue with the suggestion of Governor Pinchot that the president take charge of prohibition enforcement, today brought a reply from the Pennsylvania executive declaring the Kansan wants him to forget there are federal and state courts in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Allen's address was delivered at a meeting of delegates to the citizenship conference, to which Mr. Pinchot presented his ideas on enforcement in a speech on Sunday.

"We have all heard Henry warble before," Governor Pinchot said. "It is evident to my mind that the nation alone can prevent smuggling. Henry wants me to forget that there are federal and state courts in Pennsylvania which I will not do. He is not for the mailed fist in my state. I seem to remember a less martial attitude on his part when William Allen White put a sign up in his window and defied Henry, then governor of Kansas, to come and take it down. I am very fond of Henry and I always enjoy his talks."

This figure marks a record attendance, with the exception of one year, 1916. The record attendance for a single day was set this year, on Monday, when the figures went over 60,000.

The senator was well received by his audience and gave much information of value.

33d Degree Given Dr. Michael Hoke By Masonic Heads

Washington, D. C., October 16.—(Special.)—As a recognition of his wonderful work for humanity, and especially the crippled child, the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, in session here, elected Dr. Michael Hoke, of Atlanta, to the thirty-third degree. This is an honor that has never before been conferred upon such a young Mason, nor for one who has not served the required time as a knight commander of the court of honor.

Other members of Atlanta consistory advanced to the rank of thirty-third degree were Forrest B. Fiske, W. H. E. Hill, and Franklin P. Mikell. Thirty-second degree members who were advanced by the supreme council to the rank of knight commander of the court of honor, and were Edward H. Barnes, Dr. W. L. L. Champlin, Wesley Hirschberg, J. A. LeCote, Love Stillman, W. W. Fiske, Fred M. Wendall, Thomas K. Glenn, Thomas A. Martin, F. Swanson, F. F. Whitney, all of Atlanta, and W. T. Brewer, of Corneia.

Dr. Michael Hoke is one of the most eminent orthopaedic surgeons in the world, and his wonderful work for crippled children came into prominence some eight years ago when the Scottish Rite Masons of Atlanta established a hospital for crippled children and he was chosen as surgeon for that great charitable institution by the executive committee on recommendation of its chairman, Dr. H. H. Hill, thirty-third degree, sovereign grand inspector general in Georgia.

Laws of the supreme council require that a Scottish Rite Mason shall have been a thirty-second degree member for two years before he may be advanced to the rank of knight commander of the court of honor, and to have served as a knight commander four years to be eligible for advancement to the rank of a thirty-third degree Mason, which honor is only conferred for distinguished service to Masonry and humanity. The action of the supreme council in thus honoring Dr. Hoke gives him a distinction far above that ever before conferred.

GOTHAM'S BALCK BELT RAPIDLY EXPANDING

New York, October 16.—New York's "black belt" in Harlem is rapidly expanding southward and landlords are supplanting white tenants with negroes at doubled rents, protesting New Yorkers testified yesterday before the estate commission on housing and regional planning, in support of statements that 705,612 persons were without adequate places of abode.

"How can the negroes pay twice as much as the whites?" asked a member of the commission, Joseph D. Flynn, representative of the West Harlem Tenants' association, answered that landlords of "white" apartments coerce their tenants to move by failing to keep up repairs, raising rents to the limit, permitting by the emergency laws, by offering $100 bonuses to tenants if they move, and, as a last resort, by installing negro house agents. Tenants then get panicky, thinking negroes are about to become their neighbors and get out, Flynn said. Soon the apartments are filled with negroes, paying twice the previous rental, Flynn continued. They herd in roomers, as many as fifteen to an apartment, he said, and sleep on double or triple shifts, paying the apartment landlord enough so he can afford to pay the house landlord the exorbitant rentals demanded.

MURDER OF PATROLMAN IS CONFESSED BY THREE

Salt Lake City, October 16.—The three young men under arrest at San Bernardino, Cal., suspected of having been implicated in the killing of Patrolman David H. Crowther, of Salt Lake, have confessed the crime, according to advices received by police officials here.

Crowther's body was found on the banks of the Jordan river last Sunday at noon, a bullet fired from behind having entered his head, killing him instantly.

Yesterday police at Ludlow, Cal., arrested three youths in the automobile which Crowther was driving when last seen here on October 12. It is the belief of local officers that he was slain at a point some distance from the Jordan river and his body hauled there.

When the remains of the policeman were found his clothes had been stripped of all valuables.

CARPENTER WILL ASK TAX FI. FA. REFUNDS

Alderman J. L. Carpenter, who led the fight in council at Monday's session to extend the time limit for paying city taxes, Tuesday declared he would introduce a resolution at the next meeting of that body, November 5, to refund to all delinquent tax payers the amount of city taxes which the board of city tax assessors insist must be added now despite council's action in favoring an extension.

A number of citizens who endeavored to pay their taxes Tuesday were told at the city hall that it would be necessary for them to wait until they were served with a fi fa by the city marshal, into whose hands the delinquent tax accounts are to be placed for collection.

Action of the board of city tax assessors in disregarding the resolution of council was due to a ruling by City Attorney James L. Mason that council did not have the legal right to extend the time limit. Law prescribes October 15 as the time limit.

"For us to have granted an extension of 15 days," declared W. A. Hanson, member of the board, "would have been decidedly unfair to the widows and workmen who were forced to make sacrifices and even borrow the money in response to the advertisements in the newspapers putting all property owners on notice that the books would be closed on October 15."

It will be several days before an accurate estimate can be made of the amount of taxes that remain unpaid. Mr. Hanson said that the books are thoroughly checked and the amounts determined, the city marshal will be unable to issue fi fas, he asserted.

South Will Back Underwood, Says Alabama Leader

Indianapolis, Ind., October 16.—"Senator Oscar Underwood will have the united support of the south in his campaign for the democratic presidential nomination," Governor W. W. Brandon, of Alabama, told the United News in an interview here Tuesday.

Brandon, one of the first state executives to arrive for the fifteenth annual governors' conference, said that Underwood was the dominant figure in the democratic party and the man best fitted to oppose the republicans in the next presidential election.

"Senator Underwood stands for everything that is right, and that is, after all, more important than political issues," Brandon said. "We need a president who has no sympathy for racial or religious disputes, a man who has the support of Americans of all creeds. Such a man is Senator Underwood."

Governor Brandon declared that the southern states "think a great deal of Samuel Ralston," Indiana's junior United States senator, and that if the party failed to agree on Underwood, Ralston would get the south's support.

Brandon assailed Governor Pinchot's suggestion that prohibition enforcement be placed in the hands of President Coolidge.

"Enforcement of the prohibition laws is a huge task, and the only way to get anywhere is for the state to cooperate with the federal government. That is what we are doing in Alabama, and that is all that the states should do."

Nine Men Burned.

Philadelphia, October 16.—Nine men were burned, five seriously, by an explosion at the plant of the Midville Steel Company here early today. Six of the men were treated at a hospital, the others receiving medical attention at the plant. The explosion was caused by the cooling of steel slabs in water.

LAXITY ON LAWS IS HIT BY JUDGE IN HENRY COURT

McDonough, Ga., October 16.—(Special.)—Henry county superior court convened here Monday with Judge Ogden Persons, of Forsyth, presiding. This is the first court held here since the division of the circuit and since Judge Persons' appointment, and a large crowd was here to hear his charge to the grand jury.

Judge Persons made a strong charge to the jury on "Citizenship and Its Obligations as to Law Enforcement."

He showed how crime is increasing in the United States and said that the people were responsible for it in that they did not do their duty as citizens. He called attention to the laxity of the enforcement of the prohibition laws and said: "All men who value their citizenship should not only obey the prohibition laws but should see to it that others do not violate their duty with their knowledge."

EVIDENCE IS BEGUN IN TRIAL OF COOK

Fort Worth, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Presentation of evidence by the government in the trial in federal court here of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer, and his codefendants charged with using the United States mails to defraud, began this afternoon when C. B. Whitmer, real estate dealer of Fremont, Iowa, took the witness stand as the first of more than 100 witnesses expected to be called for the prosecution.

Mr. Whitmer's testimony was short, as most of the time was taken by the government reading letters to the jury he testified he received through the mails from the Burk Hoyt Oil company, signed by J. S. Root, a codefendant, and from the Petroleum Producers' association, signed by Dr. Cook.

The letters urged that the stockholders in the Burk Hoyt company transfer their stock into Dr. Cook's association by paying 25 per cent of the stock value in cash. One of the letters written by Dr. Cook said: "Petroleum is the king of industry" and "our success is as certain as human progress."

Mr. Whitmer went on the stand this afternoon after Attorney H. C. Wade had completed a brief statement of facts to the jury for the defense and after Attorney Henry Kahn, of Houston, representing S. E. J. Cox, addressed the jury denying that Cox had been involved in the affairs of the Petroleum Producers' association.

STATES OPPOSING "PITTSBURG PLUS" WILL MEET TODAY

Chicago, October 16.—The first meeting of the recently organized states opposing "Pittsburg plus" will be held here tomorrow with a number of attorneys general, now here for a conference on the oil industry, expected to attend.

The association movement started with the appropriation of $55,000 by Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin to form a joint commission to fight this method of "steep price fixing." Co-operation of other states was invited with the result that fifteen additional states are now aligned with the original quartet.

They include Florida, Georgia, Idaho, South Dakota, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, North Dakota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

DENY INTENTION OF DOING INJURY TO OIL BUSINESS

Chicago, October 16.—The sense of the conference of attorneys general from twenty-four states gathered here to go thoroughly into the oil industry is not to hurt but to help legitimate industry. Attorney General O. S. Spillman, of Nebraska, chairman, announced here tonight.

While he, as well as the other twenty-nine state and federal officials meeting in the conference, refused to give out what was taken up within the meetings today, the greater part of the day was taken up with facts and figures offered by L. V. Nicholas, president of the National Petroleum Association, said to represent the smaller independents, and R. L. Welch, secretary of the American Petroleum Institute, said to represent the larger companies.

Mr. Nicholas declared after going before the conference that it was his opinion the men assembled here are a "bunch of level headed men" who seemed "willing to give the industry a chance." Mr. Welch refused to divulge in what direction the questions put to him had gone.

The committee on resolutions, meeting tonight, was expected to formulate the main policy and probably accomplish the resolutions they probably will present at the reconvening of the conference tomorrow morning. Until that time all questions as to the work now accomplished by the conference were left unanswered.

LEAVES BY AIRPLANE TO DOCTOR TROTSKY

London, October 16.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Munich today says that Dr. Ferdinand Sauerbach, the noted surgeon, has left for Moscow in an airplane to attend Leon Trotsky, war minister of Soviet Russia, "who is suffering from cancer of the stomach."

Trotsky, due to the subway in Paris, may cause the removal of the territory of Paris to outside the city limits.

Testimony Given By Own Witness Denied by Stokes

New York, October 16.—W. E. D. Stokes, subpoenaed to the witness stand by opposing counsel today in the retrial of his divorce suit against Helen Elwood Stokes, contradicted the testimony of Anna McIntosh, one of his negro witnesses, after she had repudiated an affidavit filed in court by Mr. Stokes and signed with her name.

The affidavit conflicted with the woman's testimony of yesterday and today, when she stated she had seen Mrs. Stokes twice while she was in the apartment at 155 West 57th street, and once at a liquor party in the home of Miss Ida Adams. Stokes admitted having sworn deliberately to a lie at the first trial in asserting she had seen Mrs. Stokes only twice. She explained she wished to protect Miss Adams' reputation and the court had to demand that she name her.

Only One Affidavit.

The knotty lawyer proprietor told he knew of only one affidavit signed by the negroes, that being the document filed with the court at the beginning of the retrial. He said it was made, to his best recollection, after the first trial.

The woman had sworn the only paper she signed was taken before the first proceedings. Pressed by Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel for Mrs. Stokes, Stokes stated that she had sworn the affidavit was made before or after the first trial. Mr. Stokes asked to see the paper, and get the date.

He knows very well it was dated November 4, 1921," retorted Mr. Untermyer.

Asks Other Papers.

Under the subpoena, Mr. Stokes demanded that Mr. Stokes produce the affidavit. Mr. Stokes handed the clerk a statement of Mrs. Nell Rose Miller, who admitted last week she had testified falsely about her past but could not remember whether he had taken statements from Joseph A. Thornton, Lillian Payne or Mrs. Elmer Henrich, all of whom had told the jury they had seen Mrs. Stokes at the Wallace apartment house. He said he did not take statements from Elmer Henrich or Mrs. Agrie Byers, witnesses against Mrs. Stokes.

The negroes testified she saw Mrs. Stokes at a breakfast party in the Wallace apartment in May, 1924, at Miss Adams' party a few weeks later, and at Wallace's again in 1917. She said she peeped through the kitchen door at the breakfast party but later testified the door was open. Mrs. Stokes gave birth to one of her children in September, 1914.

The maid said she saw Mrs. Stokes at close range at Miss Adams' home after she was sent out for cigarettes. She said at first the signature on the affidavit conflicted with her own, but when Mr. Untermyer pointed out apparent discrepancies in statements in the paper and those she made today, she flatly denied having signed it.

Max D. Steuer, chief counsel for Mr. Stokes, drew from the witness acknowledgment she was uneducated and didn't know what an affidavit meant.

Came to Apartments.

Anna Frances, negroes maid in the Wallace apartment in February, 1918, was on the stand when court adjourned until tomorrow. She testified she had seen Mrs. Stokes enter the apartment twice a week for three weeks, adding that she always went up stairs to another apartment in which she also worked when Mrs. Stokes arrived. The defense, it was understood, will attempt to show Wallace was in the west in February, 1918.

Mrs. Anna Doering, mother of Gladys Dale, actress and dog fancier, testified she had seen Mrs. Stokes on the stairway of the Wallace apartment house as she was coming down stairs from her daughter's apartment. She admitted that Mrs. Stokes and Hattie Johnson, a negroes active in getting witnesses for the trial, had called three times at her home before the trial, but said Mr. Stokes was there by a dog.

She said she recognized at once a picture of Mrs. Stokes shown her by the Johnson woman because her daughter had several photographs of Mr. Stokes in her album. She told one group picture in which Mrs. Stokes was described in ink as "Red Helen." She said she had burned the album, after refusing to answer several questions about Miss Dale's life on the ground her daughter was dead. She couldn't remember the date her daughter had had parts in but believed she once played with "Eddie Held."

RAW SILK VALUED AT $60,000 STOLEN IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, October 16.—Several armed men today held up Carmine Dargenzela, truck driver, in the heart of the busy warehouse section, forced him and two companions from the truck and drove off with the load of 55 bales of raw silk valued at $60,000.

The highwaymen compelled Dargenzela and his companions, Carmine Babbins, owner of the truck, and his 18-year-old son, Anthony, to enter the touring car in which they were driving. The bandits then drove their captives to Morningside Park, about seven miles away, and made an roll down an embankment. When they reached the bottom, the robbers had disappeared.

LAST SURVIVOR OF FAMOUS RAID PASSES IN DAYTON

Dayton, Ohio, October 16.—John Reed Porter, 85, last surviving member of the famous Andrews raiding party of civil war days, died here last night.

They boarded the train at Big Shanty, Ga., took possession and ran the train 80 miles north before the fuel gave out and they were captured.

Mr. Porter and some of his companions escaped when the Confederates near Atlanta, Ga., and successfully made their way north.

TRADE TREATIES NOT TO BE BROKEN

Washington, October 16.—President Coolidge has decided to follow the course of President Wilson and President Harding in refusing to abrogate certain commercial treaties which congress directed should be terminated in 1920.

The treaties, thirty in number, prohibit the United States from instituting preferential tariff on imports carried in American bottoms. A mandatory provision declaring the legislative branch of the government that they found it impossible to comply.

The views of President Coolidge on the subject were disclosed today in connection with the presentation to the executive by Alexander R. Smith, a New York shipping man, of a plan for a ten per cent reduction in rates on imports when carried in American vessels. The president took the suggestion under consideration, but he feels that it would directly conflict with these treaties.

After coming into the presidency, Mr. Coolidge sought the advice of the states department on the question of abrogating the treaties, and the department advised him that abrogation would not be practicable. The notion of the department is that the entire treaty in each case would have to be abrogated, and that treaties were negotiated for the foreign nations concerned, and the demand some sort of preferential treatment in return for the giving up to the United States of the right to the low rates on American-carried imports.

Shipping men have long urged that the government assist in the building of a merchant marine by the abrogation of the treaties and imposition of preferential duties. After President Wilson and Harding had refused to act, congress debated a proposal to accomplish the abrogation by direct action by the senate and the house, but the resolution never came to a vote.

McMahon Stresses Need of Sympathy For Foreign Born

Cincinnati, October 16.—Sympathy, interest and manifestation of a spirit of real brotherhood on the part of the native-born American toward the foreign born, are necessary if the American movement by the Americanization movement are to be successful, Charles A. McMahon, Washington, D. C., declared in an address at the annual convention of the National Council of Catholic men here today.

Mr. McMahon, who is civic education director of the National Catholic Council, said that the foreign born would succeed in promoting citizenship among the foreign born must bring to their work a more intimate knowledge of the immigrant groups in America.

"The failure of great numbers of American people to think for themselves," said Mr. McMahon, "and their apparent willingness to become as many pawns in the pernicious game of propaganda constitute a grave situation in the United States and is a problem of civilization as well as of Americanization."

"It is surely high time for the liberty-loving people of the United States to take an unyielding stand against the forces, visible or invisible, which threaten the safety and security of our national life and the perpetuity of our American institutions. In this struggle for the supremacy of law and order over lawlessness and despotism, no quarter should be given to the so-called 'patriots' who distort and disgrace our Americanism and whose weapons are darkness, the mask, violence, intimidation, and mob rule."

Sensational charges concerning the alleged relationship between a "powerful secret organization with large financial resources" and the National Education Association, were made by Dean W. P. Burris, of the College for Teachers of the University of Cincinnati, at the annual dinner of the council tonight.

This organization which was not named was said by Dean Burris to be working in close affiliation with the educational organization, "which not only seeks national control over education, but which also seeks to make such control doubly secure by heading up education in this country under a 'national university in the capital of the nation, under government supervision and control."

WOMEN PLANNING TO BAR POLITICS

Georgia are backing the movement and they are sanguine as to the results. They believe that the measure will be adopted before the present meeting adjourn and that much of the harm that was done by reports of political disagreements will be offset by the announcement that the states are forever a thing of the past.

Just when the resolution will be introduced and by whom could not be definitely ascertained tonight, though the identity of many of those who favor the move is public property. Friends of the measure state that they will have a convincing case to present tomorrow at which time details for presenting the matter to the federation will be worked out.

"Get Together For Children," Evans Urges

"We should all get together for the sake of our children, and see that they are adequately supplied with schools and equipment, for in the education of our youth lies the hope of the republic," Lawton B. Evans, for forty years superintendent of the Augusta schools, declared Tuesday afternoon at the laying of the cornerstone of the William A. Bass Junior High school.

Mr. Evans delivered a beautiful eulogium in memory of the man for whom the school was named. "We must not forget," Dr. Evans declared, "that the science of education, like every other science, is moving forward. The schools of a generation ago are not the schools of today. The modern school comes nearer touching on the daily life and the future occupation of the child than did the school of olden times. The studies are less academic and more useful. It is well for the people to realize that the education of the child is a process that is continuous. It goes on at home, on the street—everywhere. The schools are only a part of the forces that bring up a child, and often the evil forces out of school are so strong that they counteract the good of the school."

"Therefore, let us all get together for the sake of the children. They belong to you and not to the teachers. They are your responsibility more than ours. If the home and town will cooperate to train and protect the child of Atlanta then the school will find its task a pleasant one."

A glowing recital of the life and achievements of William A. Bass was delivered by Judge Nash Broome, followed in a talk by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton. W. L. McCall, chairman of the committee which has been in charge of building bond issue schools, explained the building program. Joe P. Bowdoin, grand master of Georgia Masons, presided at the Masonic ceremony.

Approximately 3,000 persons gathered at 8 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to witness the laying of the cornerstone, 1,200 of whom were pupils of Atlanta schools.

Horoscopes Fail To Solve Taylor Mystery Murder

Seattle, Wash., October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Deceptions made today of horoscopes declared to have been sent to film stars by Arthur Covell, astrologist of Marshallfield, Oregon, who has been charged with murder in an indictment disclosed none relating directly to William Desmond Taylor, motion picture star, who was slain in his home in Hollywood, Los Angeles, said Luke S. May, detective.

"I have deciphered a horoscope sent by Covell to an actress mentioned very prominently in connection with the death of Taylor," said May, who announced last night that the studies of the death of Mrs. Elba Covell, of Bandon, Oregon, for which Covell was indicted, had shown a "strong clew to the Taylor mystery and I have found that it makes no reference to Taylor."

The studies I have made today of horoscopes sent out by Covell show that a number of leading Hollywood people were influenced by the studies of the death of Mrs. Elba Covell, of Bandon, Oregon, for which Covell was indicted, had shown a "strong clew to the Taylor mystery and I have found that it makes no reference to Taylor."

May said that continued perusal of Covell horoscopes indicated that a great many people were warned to leave Oregon, the alternative being the payment of some money, and that warnings signed "K. K. K." were to be sent to these people.

CHILDREN VICTIMS OF MAD DOG BITES

Three small children were Wednesday victims of wounds inflicted by a mad dog with which they had been playing on West Hunter street. They were rushed to the offices of the state board of health and were given the Pasture treatment. The dog was killed. Those bitten were George Hewell, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hewell, of 881 West Hunter street; W. R. Mason, Jr., 857 West Hunter street, and Harold Mason, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mason, of the same neighborhood.

Officer George Lee, who rushed to the scene in a police automobile, found the bound with which the youngsters had played for months, and shot him. An analysis of the head of the dog showed that he had been suffering from rabies, and that the last stages had been reached last Wednesday.

LEGION MEMBERS' CUP FOR GEORGIA

Georgia's American Legion organization was awarded the McNider memorial trophy Tuesday by the American Legion national convention in session in San Francisco, according to telegraphic news dispatches to Atlanta. The McNider trophy is awarded to the state showing the largest increase in membership in proportion to the number of men available for membership.

COOLIDGE TO AID VETERANS' BUREAU.

San Francisco, October 16.—It is the earnest wish President Coolidge that every effort be exerted to advance the time when no justified complaints will be possible in regard to the United States Veterans' bureau.

Director Hines of the bureau told delegates to the fifth annual American Legion convention here today.

"There is one thing I desire to impress upon you as strongly as I can," he said. "In the conduct of affairs of this great soldier organization and the operation of the veterans' bureau it is essential that through our actions in efficiently administering the measures of relief passed by congress, we retain the confidence of the taxpayers."

"It is President Coolidge's earnest wish that every effort be exerted to advance the time when no justified complaints will be possible; when no instance of improper expenditure or extravagant practice will occur, and when every disabled veteran will be given that tender and devoted care to which he is so justly entitled."

Director Hines detailed the working methods of the bureau, explaining the disposition of each dollar available. One of the biggest features of the bureau, he said, was the hospital service.

"I believe that the time is rapidly approaching when the consideration of the veterans' hospital service for all veterans of all wars," he concluded.

MRS. ARMOR FAVORS WILLIAM G. M'ADOO

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 16.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, of Georgia, who has been a prominent participant in the proceedings of the W. C. T. U. convention here, has given out for publication the following statement concerning the democratic national presidential situation:

"The political leaders who think that by nominating a wet they will thereby draw the votes of certain northern states, which, linked with the solid south, will carry the democratic platform to victory, offer a gratuitous insult to the Christian men of the south," said Mrs. Armour. "If such should be the result of the convention, then the split will come, and the women will in a body vote for a republican dry."

But it will not be entirely between the men and women, for there are still enough Christian men in the south who hold to the ideals of prohibition to make the splitting faction the stronger.

"I am not speaking merely from a personal standpoint. I have lectured before many representative audiences in the south, and the statement of southern womanhood's stand on the prohibition question has never failed to be cheered to the echo. Sunday morning in the Centenary church, my statement of affairs was applauded and cheered, and cheering isn't a common occurrence in the southern churches. I know that I speak the sentiment of southern women."

"We will never back a nominee who does not stand four square on the prohibition question, and whose record is not absolutely clean."

"The national convention must give us a man we can accept. If they honor and love and wish to preserve the democratic party they must give us a man we can accept. We are Christian women first and democratic women next, and we cannot and will not support a man whose words and works do not agree."

"I myself sat in the gallery while Underwood led the fight against the Webb-Kenyon bill. The old scold would support a man like that? No. And while I do not think it is my place in my position to influence women for one particular man, still it is my duty and my purpose to influence as many as I can against one."

TRACK WORKMAN STRUCK BY CAR

W. J. Henry, track workman of the Georgia Railway and Power company, was rushed to Davis-Fischer hospital about 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night with a broken leg, after an automobile had crashed into him as he was working on the tracks on Peachtree street, near Baker street. The driver of the automobile, Jim Long, of 203 Ponce de Leon avenue, was arrested on charges of drunkenness and reckless driving.

Henry said he was working on the tracks and that the car came crashing into him as he worked. He said that the red lights were burning on the line which connects the trolley wire with the machine with which he was working.

Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard investigated the accident.

SOW BOUNTIFULLY.—He which sows sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which sows bountifully shall reap also bountifully.—2 Corinthians 9:6.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

Bishop Wilbur P. Thirkield, of the Mexican diocese of the Methodist church, made a recent visit to Atlanta, and not only brought messages of cordial good will from the people of Mexico, and from the government, in the restored relations of personal and diplomatic amity between this country and its southern neighbor, but has advanced some definite ideas as to America's attitude toward Mexico that are illuminating, forceful and worthy at least of a trial.

In an interview in The Constitution on Tuesday the bishop said: "The attitude of the United States towards Mexico is indicated by eleven forts on the border, their guns pointing over the line, manned by 8,500 men and 450 officers. Even today, although I am gratified at the recent recognition of Mexico, I would advocate the dismantling of the forts and put some of the money into four or five hundred scholarships to bring young men and women from Mexico to our colleges here that they may be educated in a broad program of modern democracy and go back as messengers of peace and good will binding the two countries closer together."

Along the long stretch of the Canadian border there is not a gun trained upon the peoples of the dominion, and not a peace officer except the routine of border police patrol, and the usual quota of enforcement officials at the ports.

Along the Mexican border, from Brownsville to Lower California, there are, as the bishop pointed out, eleven great forts with more than 8,000 soldiers whose duty it is to keep their guns trained upon the territory south of the Rio Grande in a menacing, intimidating attitude, much as a resident would keep a vicious, snarling bulldog at the front gate and yet invite his neighbor in to participate in his hospitality.

Psychology enters into national relations as well as into the characteristics of the individual, and with American guns trained day and night upon Mexico in times of peace, it has not been conducive to that spirit of international relationship that a different attitude on the part of this government might have evoked.

Under the administration of President Obregon, who is largely an American in sympathy, having been born and reared along the Arizona border, educated in America and holding large interests in this country, the Mexican people have taken on a new life. The old spirit of perpetual revolution has given way to the higher ideals of education, religion, industrial peace and personal independence. He has shown himself a friend of the peon classes, and the welfare work of his administration has brought about higher and nobler ambitions among them, and better conditions of living.

There is no reason at the present time to distrust the Mexicans, either as a nation or a people, and if the intimidating, and even provoking, influences of the military and the guns are removed from the northern side of the river there is every good reason to believe that the moral effect of such a move on the part of this government would be a valuable balm of popular amity between the neighbors.

Said Bishop Thirkield further: "The way to help a lowly, backward people is to help them. The removal of these guns will do more to establish peace between us than any active recognition. The peons of Mexico are not war-like or bloodthirsty, but are a peaceable, clean, hard-working, burden-bearing race."

Undoubtedly this is true. When President Taft declared a policy of reciprocity with Canada the economic effect was electrical. It has never failed, and never will. Governments created by human beings are human. The mind of man must not overlook that fact, and when it does, the consequences become inhuman.

If the southern border is handled like the northern border, then there is no respecter of individuals on the part of this government; no undue favoritisms and no unprovoked penalties.

The suggestion of Bishop Thirkield is worthy of a fair and impartial trial.

SERVED A GOOD PURPOSE.

Although the bodies of General James E. Oglethorpe and his wife will remain for all time sealed in the vault in the little churchyard near London where they have rested for the past many generations, the work of Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, of Atlanta, in locating them, and in dedicating anew the reverence of Americans for the great colonist who founded the state of Georgia and proclaimed some of the fundamental principles of American civilization, will go down in history as an outstanding achievement.

Dr. Jacobs, in foregoing his plan to have the bodies removed to Oglethorpe university, there to become the shrine of the lovers of the great tenets of governmental morals for which he pioneered, only shows the bigness of the man, for he deferred to the opposition to such a removal rather than to precipitate a controversy over so sacred a matter.

But the incident has served a valuable purpose in making the resting place of the great founder of Georgia a sanctuary that will not again be forgotten by the English-speaking peoples of either hemisphere.

A GREAT SPEECH.

Lloyd George, war-time premier of Great Britain, the greatest commoner in Europe and perhaps the most colossal active figure in world statesmanship, made the following statement in an address at Minneapolis Monday:

"I am not here on any mission, but let me say to you one thing, that until America with its mighty influence, with its great power, with the moral command which it has in the world because of its past, with the great claim that you won by coming into the war without any selfish purpose but for a holy ideal, sending millions of your best young men across to fight for liberty and for nothing else—until this great land casts its influence into the scale of peace, I despair of the future."

He spoke the sentiment of the American people, regardless of politicians, demagogues and the appeals of the irreconcilables and obstructionists to the prejudices and passions, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Not only is American cooperation, in setting Europe's house in order, due to the unselfish and strategic position of this country, a duty imposed by its policy of war, but it is a duty to the economic interests of this nation, which must suffer until the markets of Europe are reopened, and the consuming demands of the nations of that hemisphere can be adequately supplied upon the old-time basis of international trading.

This nation spent twenty-three billions of dollars in its cooperation with the allies in putting down the menace of Prussian autocracy. It did so by the vote of congress and the overwhelming will of a patriotic, liberty-loving, democratic people.

The discharge of these enormous obligations, carried by the people themselves who hold government securities, will impose heavy federal taxes upon American generations who are yet unborn. It sacrificed, in addition to its financial disbursements, more than 50,000 lives of American boys, disabled and incapacitated thousands of others, and disrupted the routine of industrial, commercial, agricultural and financial affairs to the extent that it will take many years for a reconstruction to any degree of a sound and stable national basis.

And yet, due to the exigencies of politics, and the prejudices aroused by demagogues, this government adopted after the armistice a policy of isolation that made its war policy appear as madness, and that has kept Europe on its knees, and the national interests of this country penalized to a most depressing extent.

There must be a change, and the voice of the American people will reach the cry of Britain's greatest commoner until there is a change, even if it must be demanded at the ballot box.

The scientist who predicts that people will "soon be able to live a thousand years" probably was too busy to consider the inevitable high cost of living.

Autumn brings the bread of the fields, and the prodigal sons are coming home to slice it.

The Georgia county fairs are doing their best to display the statewide prosperity.

The Indianapolis News thinks that "a man who is eager for a drink of fuel oil and wood alcohol probably could not be persuaded to use arsenic or carbolic acid as a chaser."

V. I knew you would be gone ere long, And thought I heard your farewell song. Ah, how your singing I will miss! But winter cold and cheerless is; A singer, such as you are, hies South, to some earthly paradise. Away from snow and ice, and gloom, Where winds blow soft, and roses bloom. And gold-bright stars, and skies of blue. Bend low to listen unto you.

VI. Go, singer, go; so swift of wing, 'Neath sunny skies you soon will sing. Next spring, come back to us, come when The world with glory's garbed again, And glad to hear your welcome song; Build here your nest, and tarry long; I may not hear your song, for you, Ah, well, dear bird, bid me adieu. —CHAS. HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

MEDICAL RESEARCH IN DEN-TAL HYGIENE. Although the teeth consist principally of calcium (lime) and according to some good authorities on nutrition in this country, notably Prof. Henry Sherman, of Columbia university, the ordinary mixed diet of American urban residents is more often deficient in calcium than in any other element. The diet is deficient in calcium or lime in the diet is not the dominant factor in the calcification of the teeth.

One of the factors in this important process is the amount of vitamin-A in the diet, according to research conducted by the Mellanby laboratory in London. The Mellanby research council in London. Their work showed that when this particular vitamin is taken in large amounts, the teeth are stronger and function of vitamin-A in the course of studies of the causation of rickets. When vitamin-A was deficient in the diet, the more cereal eaten the worse formed were the teeth—dogs, a diet of oatmeal gave the dogs poor teeth, both dentin and enamel being defective, but when crude cod liver oil (unchanged) cod liver oil was added to the oatmeal diet, the teeth developed normally. Cod liver oil, if not "purified" is one of the richest sources of vitamin-A.

No doubt the herring eaten by the Highlander furnishes enough vitamin-A to save his teeth from the bad effects of oatmeal alone. Milk, taken raw, and cream and butter, are likewise rich sources of vitamin-A. These commodities serve to "save" the reputation of oatmeal as a health food. The Mellanby observe that a diet of eggs (egg yolk is still another food rich in vitamin-A) milk, green vegetables, herring and oatmeal will produce normal teeth. On the other hand a dietary of cereals, especially oatmeal, vegetable margarine, hard lean meat, jam, sugar and tea, would lead to defective teeth.

The cow gets her vitamin-A from the green pasturage. We might say that a bale of hay a day and keep the dental burr away—if alfalfa or clover could be condensed and marketed we could save his teeth from the bad effects of oatmeal alone. But seriously, if we can't compete with the cow for that which assures sound teeth, we can get a sufficient ration of vitamin-A by making a judicious selection of nutrients and relishes or roughage in our diet, from infancy upwards.

Our own Professor Mellanby, of Johns Hopkins, tried to teach us these very things long before the London research workers made their observations, pointing out that the position of the diet, not only of the child, but of the expectant mother and the nursing mother, determines the development of sound teeth.

Among the foods containing vitamin-A therefore entitled to be called "tooth food," are: crude cod liver oil, butter, raw milk, egg yolk, cabbage, lettuce, celery, leeks, spinach, beet leaves and other greens, orange juice, carrots, potato skin, orange nuts, river herring, salmon, sweet green onions, heart, kidney, sweet bread and brain.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, October 16.—The few saloons that hang on in New York are pitiful reminders of what they call "the good old days." The old-time bartender is no longer behind the bar. In his stead is the flip young man—mainly, please, he is now a Fifth Avenue coach conductor—and he talks with a certain pride of the days when he reigned in white-aproned pomp on the other side of the bar.

I had a chat the other day with one of the old-time bartender types—mainly, please, he is now a Fifth Avenue coach conductor—and he talks with a certain pride of the days when he reigned in white-aproned pomp on the other side of the bar. He learned much of human frailties, he said, and also of its nobility. Men drink, he declared, because of three things—joy, sorrow or for convivial companionship. The majority, he believed, were in the latter class.

It was his conviction the bartender must be all things to all men. He illustrated. The man came in alone. Called for straight whisky. Drank in silence. Ordered another. Then to the barkeep: "Join me in a little something?" And the "Don't care if I do."

After this drink the lone drinker began: "Say, did this ever happen to you?" And he usually told a hypothetical story—one of sorrow or joy about a supposed friend. The bartender knew intuitively the man was rehearsing his own joy or sorrow. This went on day after day, year after year, and so the barkeep became a student of human nature. He told me he could tell at first glance whether a man was a snarker of a snarker, or Scotch. "It can't be done for a man," he said significantly. "They drink a mixture of everything."

I was interested to know why he became a bus conductor. He was a shrewd Irishman. "Because," he said, "I have an opportunity to meet people and by being on the job, I can press some passenger who can do me good. I won't be here long." He was glad, however, the saloon had gone. He said his wife and children met a certain social ostracism because of his vocation. He was much happier.

The underworld will tell you the man who fired the shot that killed Herman Rosenthal in front of the Metropolitan hotel and for whose murder Police Lieutenant Becker, Dago Frank, Gyp the Blood and Whitey Lewis were electrocuted still walks the streets of New York. I have seen the man they mean many times—mostly at night—walking on Broadway but always with a heavy-set fellow who apparently acts as a bodyguard. Some say, the underworld whispers, he will be caught off guard.

Ordering ice cream sodas all day long would sound like a heavenly sort of existence to most flappers. Yet the "soda fountain spotters" who are employed by the various detective agencies soon tire of the job and few keep it more than a month. It is the "spotter's" duty to be disguised as a casual customer and see to it that there are no frauds in the various checking systems. Also to see that service is up to the standard. The "spotter" is usually a young girl.

The toy curb market on Sixth avenue is getting ready for Yuletide. The shabby hawkers live in a world of miniature trains, engines, jumping jacks and the like. It is toyland for the poor children and the poor men to watch in wide-eyed wonder but rarely to buy. The vendors are silent men and the police do not molest them. They are not good salesmen. They merely wind up the toy and let it speak for itself.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

LET US PRAY!

In present, promise and admonition: In His example, and His Spirit: in apostles and teachers, He tells us, not only to pray, but to make prayer the habit of our souls.

The unchanging attitude, through every common day and supreme moment alike, should be that of prayer. It is not a matter of how often, but of how often we are in communion with God and conscious sense of dependence upon Him.

That which is an abnormal strain and which may also feel into intolerable ennui is the absence of this vital union with God. All our inward thoughts should be not monologue, but dialogue. That we may employ as the habit of our souls, it is not prayer, but to endeavor after the love of God. No man, my friend, is it not prayer, but to endeavor after the love of God. No man, my friend, is it not prayer, but to endeavor after the love of God. No man, my friend, is it not prayer, but to endeavor after the love of God.

The answer is: "We learn how to pray by praying, just as we learn how to do everything else, by doing it. Begin, this very moment, to exercise your habit of prayer. Do not delay—begin! Having begun you will be led into increasing light in the practice of prayer. Prayer is not something to be theorized about, but to practice. It is something to do—and to do at once."

JACKET SCRUBS SCORE USING GEORGETOWN PLAYS

'Stem' Winder, Former Jacket Player Works Out With Squad In Practice on Tuesday

Plansky, of Georgetown, Is Triple Threat Man and Coaches Are Expecting Trouble From Him Saturday.

BY JOHN STATION.
The weekly Tuesday afternoon scrimmage was an event of yesterday out at Tech flats. The scrubs, truly the most versatile team in the world, were using Georgetown's formations. They can take on an entirely new system of play and master it in an afternoon. Then the next afternoon, they get out and run great guns against the varsity, using the newly learned system as their means of offense.

Tradition at Tech tells a very funny story about the scrubs. It was back in the days when Tech and Georgia played each other, and Stone Mountain put out one of the very best prep teams in Georgia.

The scrubs and the Stone Mountain aggregation were going to play for the championship of Atlanta. Stone Mountain had a huge team, the midge on the eleven weighing about 205 pounds. The heaviest man on the Tech team hardly registered when he stepped on the scales. Clearly, Stone Mountain ruled the favorites.

But the scrubs resorted to strategy and won the game. They used a different set of plays, most every down. Now they would run a Georgia formation, then they would switch to a Clemson smasher, then over to the old Auburn line drive, and back again to the jump shift. Thus they shifted around all afternoon. They got the Stone Mountain huskies in a fog, and whipped the bullies before the fog cleared.

Scrubs Score.
Yesterday, the scrubs showed rare form. They scored a touchdown on the varsity after about five minutes of play. "Muggers" Smith simply ran wild. If he was about twenty pounds heavier, he would not be allowed on the field. He twisted, dodged, and ran rings around the varsity all afternoon. He was especially deadly on the cut back, one time reversing the whole field of play and dashing thirty yards to a touchdown. It must be admitted that the boys who started the Florida game were not in the scrimmage. The second varsity bore the brunt of the scrubs' attack yesterday. It will be the turn of the others this afternoon. The varsity strutted a little itself yesterday. They scored three or four times through the perfect performance of a few fundamental plays of football.

"Stem" Winder was out to practice yesterday in uniform. He says he is coming back to school. Stem was on the Tech team in 1918, but did not finish out the year. Since that time he has tossed around quite a bit. But when interviewed yesterday he declared that he was coming back to school, and would report regularly for practice. Stem plays end, and he is a good one, too, whenever he makes up his mind to be.

Plansky Is Star.
Georgetown has a typical three-way threat man in Plansky, their fullback. He takes the place of Elvin in this department. In fact, he is so versatile that you never can tell what to expect of him. Georgetown runs a good bit from punt formation, and with Plansky in the kicker's position, the defense must be heads up for anything.

He can pass with deadly accuracy, and execute his throws on the dead run to boot. He is unusually fast in getting off his punts, and puts them consistently well down the field. But the bad news is yet to come. In track clothes, he can negotiate a hundred yards in 10-15 seconds. He was Georgetown's entry in the pentathlon last year. He weighs 195 stripped, and is all man. Coach Clay said that he was extremely hard to put to the ground, two or three men being required for the job all the time.

He runs low when bucking the ball, and has plenty of drive in his legs. On end runs, he swings out with a long stride that covers ground by yards. Tech will have to watch him closely Saturday, or he will break loose and do some irreparable damage.

MERCER RATS TO PLAY G.M.C.

Macon, Ga., October 16.—With the third game of the season to be played Thursday against G. M. C. at Milledgeville, the outlook for the Mercer freshmen is anything but bright. As a result of a contest Friday with the Auburn "Rats," in which the Mercer Freshies came back with the little end of a 12 to 7 score, three of the backfield dependables are in the hospital. Lanier, Stein and Parks will not be able to be in play for some time, while Captain "Red" Lawrence is wearing a broken nose. The squad in general is in a bruised condition.

It is thought here that the game will be closely fought, the winner not coming out with more than 7 points. The strength of the Milledgeville Cadets is not known, but they usually put up a lively fight. The Orange and Black Freshmen have won a game with the Madison Aggies and dropped one to Auburn so far.

For Thursday's line-up it is probable that only the backfield will be changed. In spite of injuries Lawrence will start at quarterback. His ability in controlling signals is indispensable to the team. Bradley and Presto will begin at half with Glover as fullback.

E. P. Mosley gives out the following as the probable line-up: Smith, right end; Dunn, right tackle; Banks, right guard; Malcolm, center; Bohannon, left guard; Grant, center; Tipton, left end; Lawrence, quarterback; Bradley, left halfback; Presto, right halfback; Glover, fullback.

BIG ATHLETIC PROGRAM IS ARRANGED

Macon, Ga., October 16.—(Special.) Pursuant to a policy of abolishing any criticism of university athletics, in so far as attention to lay students is concerned, the Mercer board of athletic control has decided upon a program for the physical development of every student enrolled.

Under the direction of Head Coach Stanley L. Robinson, a schedule has been mapped out for classes in physical education under advanced athletes to come as regular classwork. It will be required of every first and second year student. College credit is given for such work and two years of this training is now a requirement for graduation.

It is understood that following each regular season inter-class games will be arranged between the non-athletic student. Additional to the football, basketball and baseball season already maintained, teams from here to go to out this year for track honors. A large number of applicants for the track squad will be encouraged from the student body at large. For several years no track teams have been entered from Mercer.

The 20 per cent increase in the student body of the Alaskan railway has made the number of tennis courts available entirely insufficient, consequently three new ones are being built. Two additional volleyball courts are to be added at the request of the married men who state that they would otherwise get no exercise.

ALASKAN RAILWAY BADLY DAMAGED BY RAINSTORM

Washington, October 16.—One hundred miles of the Alaskan railway have been put out of commission, according to telegraphic report received by Secretary Work today, from Anchorage, Alaska. The damage was caused by a rainstorm combined with high tides. No estimate of the damage was furnished by the report which said the entire section between Eward and Potter had suffered from washouts and destroyed bridges.

Indians Lose Money.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 16.—When the Cleveland American league team lost a doubleheader to the White Sox on Saturday, October 6, the last day of the season, the Indians dropped the sum of $9,219.58. Winning one of the games they would have finished in second place and divided $27,658.78 as their share of the world series money instead of finishing 8 points behind Detroit and dividing $18,439.15.

Steve Donoghue, England's Premier Jockey, Arrives Here For Big Race

New York, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—England's premier jockey, Steve Donoghue, a well-built mite of 109 pounds, only four feet, eleven inches tall, and rather boyish looking despite his 39 years—the anniversary of which was fittingly celebrated yesterday aboard the Olympic—set foot on American soil for the first time tonight. He was "hopeful but not too confident" of the outcome of the $100,000 international horse race at Belmont Park next Saturday. Steve traveled in regal style, with even a secretary in his accompanying party, which included Isaac Whitely, personal representative of Ben J. Pappas, Britain's premier horse owner, which meets Zev, his American rival in the outcome of the international races between three-year-olds.

The party was met at the pier by a committee representing the Westchester Racing association and the Jockey club and was quartered at the hotel Biltmore. Donoghue, a quiet, unassuming little man, reticent to speak too much of his laurels, which include the winning of the London Daily Telegraph, was in successive years, reluctantly submitted to a "bombardment" of newspaper cameramen who "shot" him in the face of the camera. He was standing figure among the first cabin notables.

Donoghue reports of a pessimistic attitude in England in regard to Pappas' chances of capturing the $100,000 stake and the trophy which goes with it for the first time upon a dirt track instead of turf. Donoghue, who has confidence in the outcome of the race, asked banteringly which horse would win, his blue eyes twinkled, then he smilingly said:

"The best horse of course."

"This race," said Donoghue, "will mean the attainment of non-attainment of the greatest ambition of my life. I do not underestimate the ability of Earl Sande, who will be in the saddle on Zev, your great American horse."

Failed to Talk of Ability. Told that Pappas in his work at Belmont Park today had breezed along over a mile and three furlongs, one furlong less than next Saturday's race, 2-24 flat, Donoghue looked surprised, and, with his slight accent, remarked: "That's bad, isn't it?" Donoghue would not intimate 75 yards for a touchdown. Logan Taylor, Boven and Carlyle played a great grand of football for the sophomores.

The final game resulted in a 12-0-0 win for the junior-senior against the freshmen. Callahan, R. Edmondson, Lilly and Selby starred in the last encounter. Pappas pulled the great stuff in the final quarter, which earned victory for his teammates. The work of Mack Anthony for the sophomores was brilliant. James, for the juniors, also showed up well.

The brand of football exhibited this season is said to be the best sample in the history of the university thus far. The games are well attended and the interest is at its highest pitch.

KID GLEASON MAY RESIGN
Chicago, October 16.—William ("Kid") Gleason, manager of the White Sox, Chicago's American league team, who today presented Charles Comiskey with a series title, will tomorrow present the White Sox owner with his resignation, according to The Chicago Tribune.

Gleason, the newspaper said, made known his plans as soon as his team had won the city series. He said he had decided to retire several days ago, according to the Tribune, which attributed the action to disappointment over the showing of the White Sox during the season just ended.

Gleason, who for three years has worked to build up a team to replace the great machine that was smashed by the world's series scandal in 1919, had no plans for the future, according to the Tribune. He expects to return to Philadelphia, his home, in a few days, but said he did not know whether he would even be open to engagements next season, the newspaper said.

Gleason attributed much of the team's ill luck this season to the injury to Eddie Collins last July and the loss of Babe Ruth, who were mentioned by the paper as possible successors to Gleason. Gleason first came to the White Sox when Harry Hooper was manager. Later he returned under Manager Rowland when the White Sox were in the midst of the 1919 season. He remained through the 1917 season to have a hand in the winning of a pennant and world's championship. In 1918 he refused to report but at the close of the season was called in and gave the managerial position and has been at the helm ever since, weathering a smashup of the White Sox as a result of the 1919 world's series scandal.

SINN FEIN ASSEMBLY CHEERS DE VALERA
Dublin, October 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Mention of the name of Eamon De Valera was greeted with prolonged cheering at the opening session of the Sinn Fein, which met today at the mansion house.

About 1,500 delegates, representing 750 Sinn Fein clubs in all parts of Ireland, filled the room in the building. The attendance included a few members of the clergy. Dr. Kathleen Lynn, who was elected a republican deputy from South Dublin in the recent election, called the meeting to order.

The first business was the adoption of an expression of sympathy for the family of Captain Noel Lemass of the Irish republican army, described as a hero, whose body was found near Rath Farnham last week with a bullet wound in the head after he had been missing since last July. The assembly then voted to make Miss MacSwiney chairman of the convention in place of Mr. De Valera.

The agenda contains questions, dealing with allegiance to the republic and allegiance to any foreign government. The unconditional release of Eamon

EMORY GRID TEAMS PLAY

BY R. L. FAGAN.

Football played the stage at Emory university Monday morning when the 11st team and the eleven from the school of business administration played a scoreless game. Jackson, Harver and Neel were the main factors in the business school team's performance, while Mundy, Crawford, Booth and Pugin were the mainstays on the freshman aggregation.

The two interclass games scheduled to be played off Monday afternoon between the law school and the sophomores, the theologists and the junior-senior were staged.

In the first frame the law came out on top with a victory against the sophomores by a score of 10 to 7. Krontadt, Morrison, Rush and Williams led the sophomores to victory. Rush intercepted a forward pass in the last quarter and dashed 75 yards for a touchdown. Logan Taylor, Boven and Carlyle played a great grand of football for the sophomores.

The final game resulted in a 12-0-0 win for the junior-senior against the freshmen. Callahan, R. Edmondson, Lilly and Selby starred in the last encounter. Pappas pulled the great stuff in the final quarter, which earned victory for his teammates.

Trinity Followers Elated Over Stand Against Carolina
Trinity College, Durham, N. C., October 16.—(Special.)—Trinity followers, at home and at large, feel that the eleven of the age of three has covered itself with glory in holding the stronger and more experienced team from Carolina to a margin of a single touchdown. Everybody feels that the score of 14 to 6 bespeaks a victory of the highest type.

The margin of a single touchdown is evidence enough that these hopes were well founded.

The first quarter opened up very hopefully for Trinity, for it was in this frame that Bullock, Trinity back, scored a touchdown. Bullock, who had been a star for Carolina, was out of the game for Trinity's only score. But Carolina stiffened and from then on outplayed the Trinity in every type of work, keeping Trinity on the defense for the remaining three quarters. Carolina's interference, both through the line and around the ends, was superb; Trinity's was sadly lacking, and the courageous backs of the Methodists were able to make only one play, a fumble, as compared with Carolina's fifteen.

Several of the Trinity players suffered serious injuries in Friday's game. Williams, right tackle, had his right bone broken and may be out of the game for the rest of the season. Hatcher, the other tackle, sustained a dislocated shoulder. Other injured players were Robert, a sophomore, who had a broken arm; Boswell, halfback, sprained ankle; Shute, end, part fracture of the arm; and Smith, quarterback, who sustained a severe injury to his head which had already been gashed in a practice game last week. The injuries of all but Williams are expected to be only temporary.

The coming week sees the Trinity squad in hard and heavy practicing, remedying the defects on interference and defensive line work as brought to light in the game with Carolina.

The next game is with William and Mary in Rocky Mount on Saturday, October 20. The Virginians have beaten the Trinity twice over the last two years, but everybody is fairly confident that the story will be different this year.

BABE RUTH TAKES OUT INSURANCE POLICY
New York, October 16.—Babe Ruth today took out a $50,000 life insurance policy with his greatest American league rival for betting honors, Harry Heilmann, of the Detroit Tigers. The policy is an insurance agent during the off season.

Heilmann witnessed the triumph of the Yankees in the last game of the world's series with the Giants yesterday and talked business with the Babe today soon after the big slugger received his part of the winner's share in the series. The policy was made out in favor of Mrs. Ruth and baby Dorothy.

Heilmann and Ruth are the keenest of rivals on the diamond, the former winning out by a narrow margin this year in the race for hitting supremacy, but also warm friends.

MEMPHIS THEATER DESTROYED BY FIRE
Memphis, Tenn., October 16.—Every fire engine in the city was ordered out at 11:40 o'clock tonight to combat a fire which was discovered in the Orpheum theater, a vaudeville house, a few minutes after the curtain dropped on the final act.

The audience and actors had left the theater several minutes before the fire was discovered and a few stage hands were the only persons in the building. First reports were that the fire originated in an office on the third floor.

The building and its contents, including thousands of dollars' worth of scenery and costumes, appeared doomed at midnight.

Tigers Will Meet Powerful Army Eleven at West Point For Second Time on Saturday

Team Will Work Out on Grounds of Georgetown University at Washington Thursday, Arriving at West Point Friday.

BY EMMETT SIZEMORE.
Auburn, Ala., October 16.—Captain (Ripley) Reagan and his Tiger football team from the plains will climb into the Pullmans on the Western of Alabama train New York bound tomorrow morning. The popular Tiger leader and his warring Tigers will be off on their thirteen-hundred-mile journey to give battle to the army mule at Uncle Sam's famous war college, West Point.

The game Saturday will mark the second Auburn-Army football game. The Plainsmen after triumphing for three and a half quarters were left trailing behind with a nineteen to six score. The coming conflict will be the fourth intercollegiate game for the Tigers eleven. In 1914 they won over the Carlisle Indians in Atlanta, while in Montgomery in 1917 a nothing to nothing deadlock resulted from the Auburn-Ohio State game.

A pep-meeting was held in Langdon Hall Tuesday night and more than a thousand students headed by the band are mobilizing tonight to brace the teams and coaches' rousing send-off Wednesday morning. The squad will be in charge of Student Manager (Rookie) Snapp and will proceed to their objective on the Hudson Friday morning.

Accompanying the team are Coaches Pitts, Hutson, Wilson and Cole. Three students have signified their intention of seeing the Army game Saturday. These include R. L. Simpson, representative of the college publication, "The Plainsman"; W. B. Willoughby, and E. S. Kilgore.

Players making the trip are: Ollinger, Harkins, Reagan, Lawrence, Stid Brice, Pruitt, Peterson, Harrison, Allen, Green, Williams, Self, Sparks, Crane, Reese, Hucklebee, McAden, Ford and Nabors.

Six World Series Records Were Broken This Year
New York, October 16.—Six world's series home run records were broken, and two more were equalled in the spectacular battle between the New York Giants and the Yankees, while several other hitting records were tumbled.

Casey Stengel, whose two home runs gave the Giants their decisive margins in both of the team's victories, and Babe Ruth, whose pair of round trip wallops gave the second game to the Yankees, were the chief record breakers.

Stengel's feat of supplying two winning home runs in one series bettered the mark of Frank Baker, who won two games for the Old Athletics with circuit wallops in separate series, 1911 and 1913.

Three records fell to Ruth. Two home runs in a single game had been accomplished three times before in series history, by Pat Dougherty, Harry Hooper and Benny Kauff, but in none of these cases did the wallop come in successive innings, as did Ruth's. The Yankee star bagged his in the fourth and fifth innings of the second game.

Babe's third home run of the series in the sixth game, broke the record of two first set by Dougherty, in 1903, and equalled by seven others, including Stengel this year. Combining his trio with the one he made in the 1921 series, Ruth tops the best previous marks for total series, three held jointly by Baker and Larry Gardner of Cleveland.

Club Records Broken.
Two records in the city were broken. The total of ten home runs for the contending teams is a new mark, while the rival team, with five apiece, share the mark of Babe Ruth, who won two games for the Old Athletics with circuit wallops in separate series, 1911 and 1913.

The record of four home runs by both teams in a single game, set by the Boston Red Sox and Philadelphia Athletics in 1915, was equalled by the Yankees and the Giants in the second contest when Ruth's pair were added to blows by Irish Meusel and Ward. The Yankees, with three

GEORGIA WORKS ON DEFENSE AGAINST AERIAL ATTACK

Bulldogs Will Clash With University of Tennessee In Knoxville on Saturday

Fletcher, Randall and Other Members of Squad Who Have Been Out Because of Injuries, Will Be Back in Lineup.

BY WALTER S. COOPER, JR.
Athens, Ga., October 16.—(Special.)—After the reverse of last Saturday at Yale the Georgia squad has settled down to work on its weak points. The Red and Black defense against the overhead game proved so helpless when matched against the bewildering aerial attack of the northern team that this week Coach Woodruff is spending a large part of the time just on this one point. The freshman team has been trained to offer the stiffest opposition in this department of the game and can often complete long passes against the variety.

The Bulldogs will have to work at pass defense rather thoroughly before they line up against the real opponents of the season. In the opening game with Mercer they had little chance to show what they could do in this respect, but against Oglethorpe the weaknesses began to crop out. If the Petrels had possessed an accurate and reliable passer they would have added many yards to their gains, but only by bad throwing were they deprived of all but one or two long successful passes. The team is now working on the game with the volunteers Saturday the team will be in better position to cope with the aerial attack and the presence of more experienced heads in the backfield will add much to the effectiveness of the defense.

Team Not Disheartened.
The team that returned from New Haven after the unfortunate defeat of Saturday is far from out of the running. They have not lost confidence because they know that with the crippled regulars back in the line-up the Bulldog eleven will be an entirely different team. Given a few days and the hospital list will dwindle and place Fletcher, Randall, Anthony, Frier, and Cleeback back on the field in playing trim. These men have been missed as much as any on the team so that the team has not been keyed up to battle as hard with them out of the game.

With one exception the squad returned from its northern invasion in fairly good condition. Charlie Wieser is out with a wrencher knee. He made several of the best gains from scrimmage among the red-shirted warriors until he was injured. Others suffered twists and bruises in the severe play that will keep them a little sore for a day or more, but as a whole the squad returned from its excursion in better form than was expected.

The next opponent on the bulldog schedule is Tennessee. The volunteers will be met on their home field

SOX AGAIN WIN TITLE

Chicago, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The White Sox are again Chicago city champions. Beating the National league clubs, 4 to 3, in ten innings today, the Americans won the series, four games to two. Two fumbles and a wild throw by George Grantham gave the Sox the championship. The Sox' fumble came in the ninth inning, in which the Sox scored twice and knocked the count, while the second fumble and wild throw came in the tenth and allowed the Sox's winning run to score.

It was the eighth city championship the Sox have won from the Cubs who earned the title three times. The National leaguers won their last title last year, the first time in thirteen years.

Tony Kaufman hurled the route in the final game for the Sox. Urban Faber, Ted Lyons and Gorham V. Laverette pitched for the Sox. Score by innings: R. H. E. Sox.....000 101 001—3 9 6 Cubs.....000 000 102—1 9 0

GIANTS GET SERIES MONEY
New York, October 16.—Checks for $4,112.88, the losers' end, were distributed today to members of the New York Giants as their share of the world's series receipts. The total distributed among Giant players and attendants was $110,634.91.

Manager McGraw and his assistant, Hughie Jennings, and twenty-four players, were the ones to get the big checks. Others who joined the club late, ground keepers, trainers and assistant secretaries received checks for sums ranging from $250 to $1,500. Baseball Commissioner Landis, who announced the award, said the world champion Yankees had not yet submitted their list of those to receive checks.

My Own-Zev to Race.
Cincinnati, Ohio, October 16.—Zev, who is to run against Papyrus in the international race at Belmont park next Saturday, and My Own, who was considered as a candidate for the honor of meeting Papyrus, probably will be seen in the Latonia championship race which is to be run at Latonia on November 2. Both are eligible for the race.

FRAIL COLUMBIA.

It is so many years since Columbia university amounted to anything at all in football that the people of the immediate influence of New York may wonder at all the mention of this team in the fall of 1923. The reason is that Columbia, once again, more recently awful at football, is testing to see whether a great coach makes a great football team or vice versa.

Columbia has a tremendous student body, but college spirit has been about as dead as the flicker as the old maid's hired escort in recent years. Columbia's schedule was made up of minor teams from schools having nowhere near as much money and even under those conditions, Columbia managed to lose plenty of games. Some said the trouble was with the coaching. Others thought that the football spirit had quite expired during the years when football was not at all at Columbia. Still others thought the students weren't giving the team enough moral support. Probably all these factors were to blame.

At any rate, Columbia's football was a very sad affair.

This year Percy Haughton and his great reputation are in charge of Columbia's football. Haughton needs no vouching. He is Haughton of the Haughton system. He modestly allows that football teams make great coaches, disclaiming that great coaches make great football teams. At any rate, here was a good spot in which to make a test, for Columbia had only one real star player to offer Haughton when he took charge—Walter Koppisch, one of the best short distance runners in America, and a football player with a flaming spirit.

Thus far, Columbia has done no better than before. She won her first game from a Joe McCann team and was tied by Amherst in the second. Old Columbia stars, such as Tom Thorpe, now coaching New York university, still believe in Columbia. Koppisch believes in Columbia. The alumni and the athletic body who went out and Shanghai Percy Haughton believe in Columbia.

The test is the clearest and the most prominent that has yet been undertaken to determine whether the great football teams are made by their coaches or turn about.

IVAN PARKE SETS PACE FOR LATONIA JOCKEYS

Cincinnati, Ohio, October 16.—Ivan Parke, who is leading all the jockeys at Latonia, rode five winners and two third horses in the seven races at the Milldale track today.

Parke, who is 16 years old, comes from Decio, Idaho, where Earl Sande and the Fator brothers got their start. Although Parke did not start riding until late in February, he now has more than 95 winning mounts to his credit. Latonia patrons consider him one of the foremost riders in America.

One man who could speak nine tongues fluently, but had not the general mental capacity to learn to write one language, applied for a position as interpreter in New York.

Baseball Still Rules Supreme As Greatest Sport, Says Heydler

MILLION-DOLLAR SERIES REALIZED

New York, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Baseball has emerged from the 1922 world's series which the New York American league team won yesterday, stronger in its hold on popular interest than ever before and unweakened by unfortunate incidents of the last few years. John A. Heydler, president of the National league, asserted in a statement to the press.

Frank Frisch, the New York National's second baseman, by his consistent hitting, daring base running and sensationally flawless fielding "came out of the series one of the greatest, if not the greatest present day all-around player of the game."

Mr. Heydler said and John J. McGraw, he added, though manager of the defeated team, "came out of the series a bigger man than ever before in his career," and "his sportsmanship was splendid."

"In the world's series just closed," said the statement, "baseball reached a peak no one had dared to prophesy for the game. Friends of the game had dreamed of a million dollar series, but nobody ever expected to see it."

"The series shows that after nearly half a century baseball's hold upon America's life is stronger than ever."

"There were those who doubted and who threw cold water and who said that the game had slipped back and had been hurt by the things that are bound to happen to all human enterprises. But the wave of interest that swept the land in full flood this fall has carried the game to its zenith."

Draw Fans From All Parts.
"Interest was not confined to New York. Fans from every state in the union thronged the city for the series. I believe if the percentage of out-of-town fans was 100,000,000, it would be an amazing thing."

Every hotel in town reported tremendous business and some of the big hotels declared that all guest rooms had been broken just for the series.

The representation from southern states in the series was the most phenomenal interest of men and women from every walk of life in the struggle.

Many Trades Are Rumored In Majors in Winter Months

GIANTS WANT PITCHERS AND MAY LET SOME OF THE INFELDERS AND OUTFIELDERS GO IN CERTAIN DEALS.

New York, October 16.—In the wake of the receding baseball magnates who came here for the world series, it is rumored that the Giants may want to get rid of some of their outfielders and infielders in the winter months. The Giants may want to get rid of some of their outfielders and infielders in the winter months. The Giants may want to get rid of some of their outfielders and infielders in the winter months.

For centerfielders they have Jimmie O'Connell, who cost $100,000 of baseball money; Ralph Shinnery, who cost about $50,000; and Casey Stengel, who was a gift. Casey Stengel, who was a gift, was only able to give Charlie Robertson, the author of the no-hit, no-run game in Detroit a raise of $100 a season or about $15 a month.

Garry Herrmann, owner of the Cincinnati Reds, said when he was here for the world series that Pat Moran's job as manager was safe for another year at least. There are private considerations on Moran's part, however, which may make it impossible for him to continue in that job.

DUNDEE MATCHED WITH MASON IN ENG.

New York, October 16.—Johnny Dundee, featherweight champion of the world, has been matched to fight Harry Mason, English lightweight champion, in London, next January. It was announced tonight by Jimmy Johnston, Dundee's manager.

Johnston declared that there was also a possibility of arranging in France a return match between Dundee and Eugene Criqui, French boxer who won the featherweight crown here this season from Johnny Kilbane, only to lose it two months later to the New York Italian.

Dundee left today for Hot Springs, Ark., where he will train for several weeks. He plans to depart for England in December. While aboard he will also visit his native land, Italy, and give several exhibitions there.

Versin, a plant found growing on Mount Calvary, was said to possess every sort of miraculous power of healing.

MAY PURCHASE INDIAN CLUB

Washington, October 16.—George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to the late President Harding, discussing reports that he might purchase the Cleveland American league baseball club, said tonight that he had entered into no negotiations for the purchase, but had considered it.

Mr. Christian, while the guest of B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, at the world's series games in New York, is understood to have discussed informally the question of whether the Cleveland club might be purchased from the widow of James C. Dunn, who was its owner for a number of years.

Since returning to Washington, however, Mr. Christian has taken no further steps in the matter and tonight said that it had gone no further than mere consideration of what he regarded as an attractive proposition.

RUMORS OF SALE DENIED BY OWNERS.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 16.—E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland American league team, said he "knew nothing about it, but did not believe it was true," when asked regarding New York dispatches reporting that George B. Christian, Jr., had purchased the Indians.

Mrs. James C. Dunn, owner of the majority stock in the club, who lives in Chicago, declared over the long distance telephone that she had heard nothing of the deal.

SERIES PLAYERS OFF FOR LONG VACATION

New York, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The call of the wild has reached the ears of Babe Ruth, manager of the Yankees, and an equal number of his erstwhile Giant rivals now that the greatest world's series has become a chapter in baseball history.

Miramichi, New Brunswick, where the big game differs considerably from the big game of a world's series, is to become Babe's stamping ground within the next week, according to his present plans.

There, armed with a rifle instead of his trusty bat, and accompanied by Hughie Jennings, the Giant's field manager, who, for the time, will change his famous "see-ya" into a moose call, the Bambino will endeavor to collect trophies for the already well-filled den of his New England country home.

Texas is the goal of Ross Young and Frank Snyder, Giant outfielder and catcher. They have tomorrow morning for the southwest, and a big game hunting trip that will continue for a month or more.

The Maine woods, the Canadian north and other famous hunting grounds of the North American continent, each will draw its share of ball players.

Mr. Barnes, Giant manager, was so anxious to forget baseball that he left for the middle west early today without collecting the $4,112.88 check paid to him as a regular member of the losing team, and Hank Gowdy was on the point of deserting New York for Ohio, but decided to wait until tomorrow when the checks will be issued.

Horses Arrive.

San Francisco, October 16.—The Tri-State stable of Kentucky, containing a group of some of the finest thoroughbreds in the country, took up residence yesterday at the Tanforan race track for the meet opening November 3. The stable includes High Cost, Pretty Molly, Atomant, Rose Mint, Lady Gotham, Bommer, and Marine Corps, Jordan and Faithful Girl.

Winner Is Offered Contest With My Own at Maryland Fair Ground Track Oct. 25

Trainers of Zev Accept Offer, But Plans for Papyrus Are Undetermined—Little Interest in London Over Affair.

New York, October 16.—Interest in the coming $100,000 race for international turf honors between Zev, American three-year-old champion, and Papyrus, English derby winner, was quickened today by a series of developments. They included an offer of an impressive trial by Papyrus, the arrival of Steve Donoghue, famous English jockey, who will pilot the derby winner, and an offer by the Maryland State Fair association of $50,000 for a special race on Thursday of next week between the winner of the international contest and My Own, rival of Zev for American honors this season.

San Hildreth, trainer of Zev, immediately accepted the offer on behalf of his horse, but Basil Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus, declared plans had been made to ship the derby winner back to England early next week and would not be changed unless otherwise directed by Ben Ivison, owner of the horse. Shortly before Zev was selected by the Jockey club to carry America's colors, Harry Sinclair, millionaire owner of Zev, declared his willingness to race his horse against My Own after the international match. The Maryland association's offer was for a race over a distance of one mile and a half at Laurel track.

Papyrus galloped an impressive 2 1/4 furlongs in 2:24 flat today at Belmont park, the scene of the international race. The time was not especially notable, according to observers, but the derby winner was under stout restraint all the way and finished strongly, in contrast to the rather tired appearance of Zev after his stiff test several days ago.

Donoghue, who arrived late today on the Olympic, probably will have the leg up on Papyrus in another exercise tomorrow, but no attempt at a time trial is planned by Jarvis.

Expresses Confidence.
Donoghue, who celebrated his 39th birthday aboard ship yesterday, declared his confidence in Papyrus and his ability to pilot the derby winner home in front of Zev. The little jockey, a national idol of British turf followers, has won five of the classics at Epsom Downs in his career, winning his third straight on Papyrus this season.

He was accompanied by Isaac Wisted, personal representative of Mr. Irish, owner of Papyrus, and several other British sportsmen who arrived for the race. Wisted was somewhat pessimistic over the prospects of the English horse, pointing out that it would go to the post under the disadvantages arising from its long ocean voyage and the necessity of training for the first time on dirt tracks.

The keynote of Zev's preparation for the race is scheduled to take place tomorrow at Belmont park when the Brown colt will be asked to go the full distance of a mile and a half. Observers expect this trial to give a conclusive line on the contest between the American horse, which has been a subject of considerable debate since it lost part of a frog in winning the Lawrence realization several weeks ago.

The good workouts of the English horse, on the other hand, have tended to shorten the odds which at first were heavily in favor of the American representative. Wagers which have been made on a 3 to 1 basis for several days dropped today to a level of 2 to 1, it was reported.

A distinguished gathering will witness the race on Saturday, making the spectacle one of the most notable in international turf history. Governors of several states, members of the United States senate and house of representatives, have reserved boxes while the army will be represented by its chief of staff, General John J. Pershing. General Pershing has been invited to present the gold challenge cup to the victor.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN BY LONDON.
London, October 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Interest here in the $100,000 Papyrus-Zev race at Belmont park next Saturday could scarcely be termed intense. As a matter of fact hardly anyone seems to care a great deal which horse wins and there has been very little betting.

Most of the dispatches from New York have reported gloomy conditions in the derby winner's stable, Papyrus being pictured as lame from running on the dirt track and with his appetite still suffering from the sea voyage and the strange environment. Zev is also pictured as not in the best of form. One account said he was blowing hard at the finish of a recent trial run.

There has been so much said in disparagement of the American dirt track by English racing critics who dole on England's lovely turf that part of the public and apparently some of the newspaper cartoonists have the idea that the Belmont park race is not much after that.

Since the race was first proposed there has been a tendency here to encourage it. Some of the big sportsmen contended that Papyrus was not up to the highest standard of derby winners in the past and that he won from a field below the average strength and speed. These conservative souls have argued all along that the Belmont race would not be a fair test since the voyage would affect Papyrus and that the whole thing would merely give the Americans an opportunity to do a little boasting.

The ordinary man in the street was much more excited today over the Cesarewitch, the great racing fixture which is to be run tomorrow at New Market. There may be a different feeling, however, Saturday night, especially if Papyrus comes in first.

KANSAS CITY GAME AGAIN POSTPONED

Kansas City, Mo., October 16.—The Kansas City Blues and Baltimore Orioles were idle again today because of foul grounds. Rain which fell late last night has almost completely since Friday postponed the game Monday. One more game will be played here, the Blues having already won two and the Orioles one. The teams then will go east where the games which decide the series will be played.

BEAUTY CHATS

WHEN THE HAIR SPLITS

Many women are distressed when their hair, which has always been perfectly healthy, suddenly begins to sow split and ragged ends. This happens often at the end of the summer, when the hair has been too much exposed to burning sun, and when the oil has dried out it.

There is no cause for immediate worry, split hair is a symptom rather than a bad trouble. But it should be treated at once and never allowed to become a trouble. First, take thin strands of hair and either plait or roll them very tightly (rolling is quickly) Rub the hands backward over the strands to bring up the ends. Then clip of singe off all these outstanding hairs, and take off three inches or so from the very bottom of the strands where most of the hairs ends.

I should advise you to do the singeing yourself, there's always the danger of setting fire to the hair. But there's none if you have a friend use a small candle, such as is used on Xmas trees, or wax taper. While you hold the strand, the flame can be slipped along it, with the other hand following it up to each any flame that looks too ambitious. This makes it sound like a dangerous proceeding, which it isn't at all. Clipping takes longer; I never allow my dressing shops to clip, because they charge more. Some claim singeing hurts the hair, but I don't agree. In any case, check on it, so you won't neglect it too long. As burnt or stubby ends aren't pleasant always singe or clip just before a shampoo.

Even when no cracked or broken ends show, the hair should be treated every few months.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

CHAPTER XV.

An Interested Stranger.

At first Madelon made no mention to Barbara of the stranger who seemed to take such an intense interest in her.

He made no attempt to address her. Though he seemed always at hand to open doors for her, to extend her the many little courtesies which test the breeding of fellow travelers, it was always with a casual, impersonal air to which it was impossible to take exception.

She found her curiosity strangely piqued. This was surely not an attempt at a common train flirtation. His appearance, too, piqued her interest. Though she had never looked at him directly, because his grave gaze seemed always to envelop her, she gained the impression of dark like grace, of hair slightly greying above the temples, of inscrutable dark eyes. There was the cosmopolitan pose suggestive of the far traveler about him.

It was Barbara herself who finally spoke of him to Madelon. "You seem to have made a conquest," she remarked at luncheon one day when the stranger occupied his table facing them, as usual. It seems to me I have noticed that same man each mealtime, and he is invariably watching you."

Madelon shrugged. "I stumble over him occasionally in the corridors too. You don't suppose Uncle Stephen has sent a detective along to see that we conduct ourselves properly, do you?"

He hardly looks the part, does he? Barbara smiled slightly. "No, I should rather say that you have fascinated him. You know you're lovely, Madelon, and part of your charm is your complete unconsciousness of it. There will be many men at your feet."

Madelon looked over the black prairie landscape through which they were passing. Her eyes clouded. "There will be only one in my heart—ever. And that is Julian."

Barbara's slim hand stretched across the narrow table to Madelon's. There was sympathy in her white fingertips. "You are very young to care like that."

"My mother cared that way," said Madelon. "She was very beautiful and considered a coquette; but she told me that she never loved but one man in all her life and that was my father. And when Uncle Stephen tried to take him from her, she fought a better fight than I, because she won."

Barbara made no comment. Back in their stateroom, she sat by the window, her chin resting on one slim hand, her eyes following the moving landscape.

Madelon's words returned to her. Should she have fought, she wondered? Would it have brought her anything but sorrow? Deep in her heart, she felt that she could have won the love of Duane Farley, if she had not chosen to put him out of her life. Strong and honorable and clean as he was, she could have had her way once the full battery of her beauty and charm was turned upon him. Even his love for Madelon must have succumbed.

But she had chosen the honorable course. What would be her reward? Would the ache in her heart ever cease? Must she go on her lonely way?

She closed her eyes against the slow tears that gathered under her lids. "It's fearfully stuffy in here."

Madelon spoke from the lounge on the other side of the compartment. "I believe I'll go out on the observation platform for a while. Want to come?"

"Where's the new novel you were reading yesterday? I'd like to try it."

Barbara motioned to her traveling bag. "Look in the pocket on the left."

"No thanks. I think I'll sleep a bit. I didn't rest very well last night. On her knees in the swaying compartment, Madelon delved into the bag. But, mistakenly, she slipped her hand into the right, and not the left hand pocket. The book she brought forth was not the novel, but Barbara's diary.

Before she could replace it, a photograph fell from its pages. Duane Farley's handsome, tawney eyes laughed up at her.

Startled, Madelon glanced up at Barbara, but the latter was still sitting with averted eyes. So she replaced the tell-tale picture hastily, and thrust the book back into its pocket.

Finding the novel, she crushed a hat down upon her fair hair and slipped into her furs. Before she went out, she bent and laid her lips against Barbara's hair.

There was tenderness and infinite compassion in her gesture. She had not known how it was with Barbara. She felt suddenly drawn much closer to her. Not because the man Barbara cared for had once been her own suitor, but because she realized that Barbara's departure for the west was really flight and signified her renunciation of a love that might have been. They were sisters in sacrifice.

She was relieved to find the platform deserted, for her own unhappiness came flooding back upon her, stirred by her glimpse of Barbara's heart. On a sudden impulse, she took a pencil from her handbag and on the flyleaf of Barbara's book, scrawled a few desperate lines to Julian Barton, lines which she knew she would never send, but whose very expression relieved her overburdened heart.

When she had finished, she read them over and then, slowly with a little bitter smile, she detached the page and tore the written message to bits.

As the last scrap left her hand and soared high in the air with the wind from the flying train, something bade her turn her head.

The prizes were pretty French novelties.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

No. 2252.

Embroidery in a conventional design of French knots gives lovely color to an attractive semi-tailored model.

The wide, soft lines of the saddle section crown are becoming to the girl with a full face. A tiny brim further carries out the idea of giving width to a small hat. For general and street wear no hat can be smarter than this design. Two shades of two materials are effective. A tan duxetyn front panel embroidered in cocoa brown, henna and jade is used for the rest of the hat. Copingchen blue faille silk for the front panel embroidered in darker blue, sand and rust is very pretty for a black velvet hat.

MATERIAL REQUIRED.

One soft pressed crown, cap lining, 2 yards brace wire, 3 1/2-yard elastic net or canvas, 1 1/8 yards 18-inch material on the straight or 5/8 yard 38-inch material, embroidery threads.

Rushing Into Print

--and coming out with Byrd economy

WHEN a Northern advertising agency this Fall decided that one of its clients manufacturing high grade candies needed a new catalog, the printing of it was ordered from Byrd.

Byrd met the emergency with a rush work schedule by means of which it was possible for the first catalogs to be distributed to dealers before the final thousand even had left the presses.

This is an example of the exceptional kind of individual service which has put Byrd first in the indices of many advertising agencies and manufacturers.

They know now that Byrd goes to almost any extremity in order that the job be done right and delivered on the tick of the clock. And they find prices at Byrd's economical.

So it nearly always proves profitable to consult Byrd first.

Put him on your printer list and after a while you'll be moving Byrd toward the top.

Every WomanMiss Juliet Sellers Weds
Mr. Hickey in Montgomery

A wedding of unusual beauty and uniting two prominent and pioneer families of the south was that of Miss Juliet Bowen Sellers, of Montgomery, Ala., and William Sanders Hickey, of Atlanta, the ceremony taking place at the Court Street Methodist church in Montgomery Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock.

The impressive marriage service was performed by the Rev. Dr. H. S. Spragins, pastor of the church, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

A beautiful selection of wedding music was rendered before the ceremony during the assembling of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Guy Smith sang an appropriate duet preceding the ceremony. The bride party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march and during the ceremony "Trauerlied" was softly played on the violin by Frank Woodruff.

Church Decorations.

The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of stately palms and urns of feathery green ferns. The altar was banked high with palms, rich green foliage and ferns and on either side tall pedestals filled with large, shaggy white chrysanthemums lent a touch of color against the rich, dark background. Tall cathedral candelabra holding unshaded white tapers cast a soft gleam over the exquisite wedding scene.

Pews reserved for the family connections and close friends were marked by clusters of white chrysanthemums, tied with white satin ribbon bows.

Wedding Attendants.

First to enter the church were the ushers, Ernest LaMont, of Montgomery; Robert Maddox, Jr., of Winfield, Ga.; and Curry Moon, of Atlanta.

The bridesmaids were Miss Antoinette Smith, of Griffin, Ga.; Miss Catherine Taber and Miss Ellen Pitts, of Montgomery, Ala. They wore exquisite gowns of hydrangea blue chiffon combined with silver lace. Their bodices reflected the bateau neck lines and were sleeveless. The skirts were gracefully draped showing a cascade effect of the silver lace.

The matrons of honor were Mrs. Wallace Hartford and Mrs. Miles C. Watkins, both of Birmingham, Ala. Their gowns were also of chiffon in the shade of hydrangea blue and were bridesmaids' costumes. Both the bridesmaids costumes. Both the bridesmaids and matrons carried bouquets of pink roses and white lilies of the valley and tied with white tulle.

Alternating with the bridesmaids came the groomsmen, Richard Hickey, brother of the groom; John A. Sellers, Jr., brother of the bride; Louis B. Whitfield, Jr., Charles Bricken, Jr., and Scott Shepherd.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Eleanor Browder, preceded the bride, wearing an attractive gown of hyacinth blue chiffon fashioned over slender satin. The front drapery was confined by a handsome ornament of rhinestones and pearls. The bodice was tight-fitting with dainty sleeves of the chiffon gracefully falling over the shoulders. Her flowers, a cascade bouquet of pink roses, ageratum and lilies of the valley, were tied with lavender tulle.

Beautiful Bride.

The bride, who is one of the most beautiful young girls in Alabama society, was lovely in her wedding gown of white duchess satin and rose point lace. The long, graceful skirt was draped toward the front, where it was caught with a knot of rose point lace hanging in a straight panel to the hem line. The simply fashioned bodice had a berth of the same lace falling over the shoulders and confined by exquisite pearl ornaments. A court train of heavy white satin fell from her shoulders in graceful folds. Her bridal veil of white tulle was fastened to her hair by a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls.

A gorgeous bouquet of orchids and valley lilies completed her costume. She entered the church with her father, John A. Sellers, by whom she was given in marriage and was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, James Edwin Hickey, Jr., who acted as best man.

Reception at Home.

Following the ceremony at the church an elaborate reception was held at the home of the bride's father, John A. Sellers, on South Perry street.

In the receiving line were Mr. Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. James Edwin Hickey, Sr., of Atlanta, the bride and groom and the members of their bridal party.

The spacious reception rooms were decorated throughout with quantities of palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums and bride's roses. The chandeliers were twined with graceful ropes of smilax and trailing vines. Urns of huge white chrysanthemums were artistically arranged on the bookcases, mantels and tables.

Bride's Table.

The bride's table in the large dining room was overlaid with a cover of imported lace and was perfect in every detail. The central centerpiece was a mound of bride's roses and valley lilies, out of which arose a tall white wedding cake embossed with valley lilies. Slender silver vases holding sprays of valley lilies were placed around the outer edge of the table alternating with silver candelsticks holding unshaded white tapers tied with bows of white tulle in which small clusters of orange blossoms were caught. Mrs. Wiley Hiet, Jr., graciously presided over the table.

Punch was served from a silver bowl embedded in a mound of ferns and bride's roses. Presiding over the punch bowl were Mrs. W. A. Gyle, Mrs. Winston Hulton and Miss Margaret Thornton.

Prominent Families.

Mrs. Hickey is the only daughter of John A. Sellers, of Montgomery, and the late Mrs. Sellers. Her father is a large Alabama planter and well known in the cotton business, having extensive interest that business in that state for over thirty years. Her mother was formerly Miss Julia Bowen, of Tuskegee, Ala., and was well known in the social circles of Georgia and Alabama.

The bride attended Washington seminary and finished her education at Mrs. Semple's school in New York. She is a beautiful young woman of charming personality and culture and has been a fete belle in Birmingham society where she visits her aunt, Mrs. W. B. Henderson. For a number of seasons she has attended grand opera in Atlanta and is always an attractive figure in box parties.

Mr. Hickey is the son of James Edwin Hickey and the late Mrs. Sallie Sanders Hickey, who was one of Atlanta's most beloved women, noted for her many admirable traits of character, sweetness of disposition and her numerous deeds of charity. She was a charter member of the Sheltering Arms association and worked earnestly for the support of the nurseries which are supported by this organization. His father is one of Atlanta's leading citizens and well known in the financial circles of this city.

On his paternal side he is a descendant of the famous Lee family of Virginia, his great-grandfather having been Richard Alexander Lee. On his maternal side, he descends from the well-known Sanders family. His grandfather was the late W. C. Sanders, founder of one of the largest cotton brokerage firms in the south, the Inman, Sanders & Co.

Mr. Hickey is a nephew of Mrs. William C. Royer, Mrs. Edward S. Ehney, Mrs. Lawrence Bratton, Inman Sanders, Mrs. Joseph Eddleman, of New York; John Sanders, of Houston, Texas, while James Edwin Hickey, Jr., and Richard Hickey are his brothers.

Mrs. Fischer Gives Tea at Golf Club.

Among the lovely compliments to Miss Maude Carlton preceding her marriage to Herman Bayne Evans on October 23, was Mrs. L. C. Fischer's afternoon tea on Tuesday at the Druid Hills Golf club.

The receiving party stood in the loggia of the club which was adorned with a variety of fall flowers in shades of pink and rose. Receiving with Mrs. Fischer and Miss Carlton were Mrs. James Carlton and Mrs. L. W. Healy.

The tea table was placed in the long reception room and surmounting the center of the exquisite, imported lace cover was a plateau of three shades of dahlias in yellow, lavender and pink. The candles were lavender and bonbons were of a soft yellow shade. Silver baskets and bowls filled with dahlias were placed around the room.

The punch bowls were embedded in mounds of autumn flowers. FEDERATED CLUB WOMEN OPEN CONVENTION IN ROME

State's Leading Women Given Warm Welcome By North Georgia City

By Bessie S. Stafford,
Editor Woman's Department, Constitution.

Rome, Ga., October 17.—The twenty-seventh convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs opened Tuesday evening in the city auditorium with the president, Mrs. James E. Hays, and Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, president of the Rome Women's club, presiding at the opening session. This convention is marked by quite a note of sentiment, as the first convention held by this wonderful organization, composed of brilliant and representative women was in 1897, and Rome was the hostess city, with Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson as the hostess president, this same high official position being held by her this year. She opened the session last evening, extending a hearty and cordial welcome to the visitors. Mrs. Johnson is one of the pioneer clubwomen of this state, and she has always been a brilliant factor in club life.

Hon. E. E. Lindsey, first city commissioner; Hon. L. H. Brannan, president of the chamber of commerce, made brief addresses of welcome.

The auditorium was decorated in autumn flowers. The background of palms formed an attractive setting for the handsomely gowned women who attended the opening session, all wearing evening costumes.

Mrs. Clifford Walker was given an enthusiastic greeting by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at the opening session, being introduced by Mrs. James E. Hays, president of the federation, as a distinguished guest and as the representative of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association.

Greeting by Mrs. Johnson. In greeting the federation as the president of the hostess organization, the Rome Women's club, Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson said in part: "Very seldom does one woman have the pleasure of welcoming the Georgia Federation as official hostess and still more unusual is it to have this pleasure the second time in a lifetime. I hope that when the federation again meets in Rome it will have as many splendid and earnest women as it has today, and we are not at all frightened over any undertaking. I hope for the future that the next convention will be as great as this one tonight."

Mrs. Johnson was given an ovation by the visiting women and praised for her splendid record of service. H. S. Shackleton, president of the Presidents' club of Rome, entertained the officers of the state federation at dinner Tuesday evening at the General Forrest hotel.

Mrs. Johnson's address was brief but timely, while Mrs. Hays' reply was a particularly fitting one. President Rufus W. Weaver, of Mercer university, and Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia State Agricultural college, made the feature addresses of the occasion. Mrs. Clifford Walker was introduced by Mrs. Hays as a distinguished guest and a representative of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association.

Mrs. Hays' address, Mrs. Johnson's address, and Mrs. Johnson's address, were as follows: "Madam President, we are here. We have come to do honor to our past beloved president, a president who steered the federation ship in its pioneer days when the sailing was not altogether smooth. "We reverence you for standing to your convictions in those days, for helping the struggling federation through those troublous years. Your administration is unique because it was through your influence that the Georgia federation broadened its vision and joined the general federation of Europe."

"You have proven yourself a most unusual woman as well as an exceptional president, and it looks as if somewhere in the hills of Rome you have found the spirit of youth. You have given yourself unselfishly to this organization, first as president for four years and through all the years since as director and now, spanning these 26 years, you start again as a club president and the hostess president to the convention."

"We rejoice to meet with the Rome Women's club, which was a charter member of the federation's and all members have been entered one of the best clubs in Georgia. Romans, we are here."

"We have come to pay our party call. You may think we are slow, for it has been 26 years since we entertained us. The federation has changed but little since then, the membership has enlarged, of course, but the ideals are the same. The old story of the child and the home—the old, old story which has always, and will always interest women."

"The federation has been the first city to entertain the federation, for aside from its reputation for hospitality this particular section is famous for its culture, its aristocracy and for its noble and brilliant women. When the town of Rome sounded the call of the nation, we were ready with gifts, the general federation raised a war victory commission to send two girls from every state to Europe to cheer and brighten the lives of our boys. The call went out for Georgia girls and from Rome came the answer, 'Here I am, take me' from two voices, one the daughter of our own Mrs. Johnson, so Georgia sent three girls, two from Rome and it was the only state with more than one girl."

"Your section gave to the United States its first woman senators, Mrs. Feltton, whom all the nation knows, and it was here that the most distinguished American, Woodrow Wilson, found the girl who afterward became the mistress of the white house. Shorter college is giving to the lives of the young women of Georgia this atmosphere of culture, and in your own midst you claim as your very own the woman whom the whole country knows and loves, who has done more for the youth of Georgia and the south than any other woman. I refer to Martha Berry, in whose heart there throbbed the love of humanity and in whom there flowed the milk of human kindness and whose integrity, perseverance and good management have made a wonderful industrial school, the Berry Schools."

"We appreciate your words of welcome, we are glad to meet in such community, and while in Rome we will try to do as Romans do."

Tallulah Plan Presented. The plan of the organization in corporation for the Tallulah Falls school which was presented by the trustees of the federation school under the instruction of the executive board, was recommended to the convention for passage by the board at its midnight session. This matter will probably reach the convention for passage on Thursday immediately following the Tallulah Falls report.

The pretty silver slipper belonging to the charming president, Mrs. J. E. Hays, served as the gavel which called the session to order and gave the welcome stroke of dismissal.

State President Responds. Mrs. James E. Hays, state president, made a delightful talk accepting the hospitality of Rome.

Mrs. Hays introduced the following past presidents in an appropriate little speech: Mrs. James Jackson, of New York; Mrs. A. O. Granger, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, of Rome; and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Madison; and the state officers: Vice president, Mrs. A. F. Brantley; second vice president, Mrs. S. V. Sanford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. H. Brenner; recording secretary, Mrs. Albert M. Hill; treasurer, Mrs. J. Spole Lyons; auditor, Mrs. Charlton Battle; parliamentarian, Miss Rosa Woodberry; editor, Miss Louise Dooler; and general federation director, Mrs. Samuel Inman.

The distinguished guests making brief talks were: Mrs. Julius Talmadge, of Athens, state vice regent, Daughters of American Revolution; Mrs. Howard McCall, of Atlanta, vice president general, Daughters of American Revolution; Mrs. Charles Akerman, of Macon, state regent, Daughters of American Revolution; Mrs. William H. Barnes, of Atlanta, state president, Daughters of American Colonists, and state councilor of Order of the Crown; Mrs. Frank Harold, of Americus, state president, United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. J. M. High, of Atlanta, state president, Daughters of Founders and Patriots; Mrs. Harry Chamberlain, of Atlanta, state president, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Frederick Vaisaire, of Rome, state president, Georgia Music Club; Mrs. Bruce Jones, of Macon, state president, Parent-Teachers' Association; Miss Dora Mendes, of Savannah, president, Business and Professional League; Miss Martha Berry, of Rome, head of the Martha Berry School; Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, of Atlanta, vice president of the United States Good Roads, and chairman of the Woman's Commission of the Bankhead highway.

The presidents' procession, officers of the Georgia Federation, past presidents, distinguished guests, officers of the Rome Women's club, and pages was a very interesting feature on the program. The inspiring music was rendered by the Home Symphony orchestra. The Rome Women's club acted as hostess upon this enjoyable occasion.

Mrs. M. L. Troutman, of Athens, was in charge of the special memorial service in memory of members who passed away during the year. Other addresses on the program included: "The New Philosophy," Dr. A. M. Soule, president State College of Agriculture; "The Club Institute," Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president Mercer University; Dr. John Wood, pastor of the Christian church, gave the benediction.

Morning Program. All of Tuesday was filled with the presentation of credential cards to the chairman, Mrs. W. W. Starke, of Commerce, and her committee at the Hotel General Forrest. At 2 o'clock the executive board held a meeting, and in the afternoon the delegates were entertained at an elaborate reception at the Coosa Country club with the federation colors green and white featuring in the exquisite decorations. Featuring the executive board meeting was the vote to rescind the board's former action in regard to federation publicity, taken at a meeting in Macon last January. Tuesday's vote, which was on a resolution introduced by Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, president of the Rome club, in effect favoring retention of The Atlanta Constitution as official organ of the Georgia Federation.

Wednesday's Program. The program today will feature the report of officers. General Federation director, Mrs. Samuel Inman; editor, Miss Louise Dooler; parliamentarian, Miss Rosa Woodberry; auditor, Mrs. Charlton Battle; treasurer, Mrs. J. Atlanta Musician Tells of Recital By de Pachmann

Last year the sensational and epochal event of the New York musical season was the return of Paderewski to the concert stage. This "recital" at Carnegie Hall is spoken of reverentially, as an experience memorable in the annals of that famous musical sanctuary.

The night of October 11, just past, marked the much heralded return of the veteran Prussian pianist, Vladimir de Pachmann, after an absence of twelve years. A vast and brilliant concourse of people, representing New York's musical elite and numbering among them the celebrities as Josef Hofmann, Rachmaninoff, Golowsky, Josef Thevine and others were present to hear him and filled the great hall to capacity.

Despite his errant eccentricities, which amounted to a mild state of lunacy, de Pachmann was for years a popular favorite in European music centers. The idle and curious were attracted to his antics by jocular tales of his grotesque and unaccountable capers and antics; the serious-minded were annoyed and disturbed by the foolish horse-play, the grimaces and the verbal interludes always attending his performances.

But underlying it all was that subtle stroke of genius, which drew the crowds irresistibly to him. A romanticist, pure and simple, with a touch of velvet and an intonation that sobbed and sang and lured exquisite lights and shadows from the key boards. It was universally conceded that de Pachmann's Chopin was unsurpassed.

It was, therefore, with anticipation almost amounting to trepidation that the audience awaited his appearance last Thursday night. Would he come back bigger and better than ever before?

The bright lights were dimmed, the heavy curtains parted and he stepped out upon the stage, a portly old gentleman, slow of step, who acknowledged affably the applause that greeted him.

But it was the same Vladimir de Pachmann, who settled himself deliberately to the task of presenting Beethoven's Pathétique Sonata. He began immediately to frantically draw his audience, indulging in foolish and puerile pranks, talking a great deal, entering into lengthy musical conversations.

to how he would play each number and then how well he had played it, until his heaving grew impatient and clamored for more playing and less conversation.

This program included Nocturne op. 32 No. 1, Second Impromptu, Prelude op. 28 No. 6, and Allegro de Concert op. 46, Chopin, two "Songs Without Words" by Mendelssohn, Romance in D minor and Nocturne F major by Schumann, and Hungarian Rhapsody No. 8 by Liszt.

Summing it all up after discounting the caricature and the distortions, there were illuminating glimpses of the man's real genius and poetic insight, when one realized that piano playing was a wonderful art and sensed the keenest pianistic enjoyment.

This Answers It for You:

Your credit, when opening a new account, is based upon three essentials:

- 1st Essential—Character.
- 2d Essential—Past record of promptness.
- 3d Essential—Ability to pay.

1st—This essential is best explained by asking yourself the question, "Are you the kind of person to whom you, yourself, would lend money out of your own pocket?"

2d—Can you name several firms of whom you have purchased goods or services who will report you as "prompt pay?"

3d—In general, is your weekly or monthly income sufficient and sure enough to meet your current expenses and this new obligation promptly when due? Capital is of least importance. People who pay promptly seldom buy more than they can pay for; their judgment restrains them.

Mr. Prompt Pay's credit is always good for a reasonable amount in goods or services. "Reasonable amount" is based upon ability to pay. Not that Mr. Prompt Pay can not buy more this month than he can pay for all at once, for he can; he can arrange almost any reasonable terms he chooses, by interviewing the credit man at time of purchase. That's the beauty of being prompt pay.

The credit man is your friend. If you are prompt pay he speaks highly of you. He is pleased to recommend you to his friends, other credit men, members of this association.

Possibly you have never met a credit man face to face. Possibly he has never seen you, but he knows how you settle your accounts, and if you are rated "slow pay" he knows still more. Because the granters of retail credit in Atlanta have an official reporting bureau. Each credit man is in touch with this bureau daily and receives reports which the bureau has compiled from information from other members.

The credit man wants to be your friend. He believes the slow pay customer could pay promptly if he would—and that is the reason why this advertisement is published.

Our official reporting bureau, Credit Service Exchange, is now compiling a new edition of its rating book. Have your record so that you will merit a prompt rating.

Government Ownership A Colossal Blunder

The Late President HARDING

President Harding, in a speech at Kansas City, took a firm stand against Government ownership of the railroads. He said in part as follows:

"It is worth while to bear in mind, in the face of current agitation, that we could not replace our railroads for a vastly larger sum than the valuation placed upon them by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and it is fortunate for our people that we do not have to contemplate a rate structure founded upon replacement cost. Events of the last few years have made us all realize that the railroads must be administered under some policy that will make it possible to find the capital wherewith to expand the existing systems and business shall require, without imposing an impossible burden upon industry and consumption."

"The railroad question is no theoretical problem. When the Government undertook operation during the war and standardized wages and was caught in the sweeping current of mounting cost, it created a situation to ignore which would quickly develop a national menace. At an awful cost we learned the extravagance and mounting burden of Government operation. Yet there are today very insistent advocates of Government ownership. Frankly, I do not share their views. Our political system has not reached a state of development when we can insure proper administration."

"I believe it would be a colossal blunder which would destroy initiative, infect us with political corruption, create regional jealousies and impose incalculable cost on the public treasury. But we must find a solution of the rate problems and the necessary expansion of facilities and find that solution in spite of the prejudices of the present-day sponsors for operations and the present-day destroyers who would bankrupt or confiscate, else Government ownership and operation will become an accepted necessity. Nor do I share the views of those who would lower rates without regard to railroad good fortune. The property of the railways is the property of the American people, and the property rights in railway investment are entitled to every consideration under our Constitution, which is due to property rights anywhere. Any tendency toward confiscation will lead to confusion and chaos and destroy the very foundation on which the Republic is builded."

This advertisement does not reproduce all of President Harding's speech, in which he urged the consolidation of the railroads; but it is interesting to note his position on the subject insofar as it referred to Government ownership of the railroads as advocated by many politicians and even sincere people who think this is a solution of the railroad problems. The President's in-sight into the workings of the Government and his knowledge of the handling of railroads by the Government during the War made him go on record strongly against the Government's undertaking again the running of the railroads.

THE GUMPS—HAPPY DAYS

The Daughter of Helen Kent

Next Week: "THE FIFTH ACE"
BY DOUGLAS GRANT.

It was the breaking point of weeks of tension, and battling conscience, and pent unhappiness. With a crash of walls that crumbled, a thunder of waters that rushed through, the climax came. He drew her, sobbing, to a seat and kneeled beside her, stroking a hand which she did not try to withdraw. "Don't, Beulah! Don't try to tell me anything about it yet. All I want to know is that you are here, and can see me, touch me."

Her hysterical sobbing, exhausted, and she looked up and met his look. "I don't understand the situation at all," he went on, "how you came to be here instead of Zelle Barrajas, and how fate has led me to tumble in upon you—but at present I don't care. It's enough, simply that it is. Please let me look at you. And don't look away from me. And keep on looking. And look again. And continue to look without ceasing."

"Yes—Philip!" she murmured, "You may look." At this he drew up a chair, and his whimsical eyes never loosened their hold. "Wouldn't you look at me? I'm not looking at you very hard, because we can never look again. It wouldn't have happened this time except by accident."

"Beulah! Don't say that can never be again!"

But it's true. We are forbidden to meet—yes, know all about your coming to my home." She forestalled explanation. "I'd rather—not talk about that—and what happened—because it hurts. But since I'm not allowed to see you at home, I can't see you anywhere else, because that would be clandestine. The word was barely whispered, so profound was her sense of its dreadful portent."

He smiled gently. "Let's ignore the precarious future and with the old hearted past—for today. For today let's merely be alive. Isn't it good just to be that? And to realize it? Plenty of people waste time by never finding it out until it's over. You don't belong here. You mustn't stay another minute. What do you say to flying as swiftly as possible to the upper end of the park, and there descending to earth, and trying which of us first discover the spot where Snow Fairy once danced?"

"Oh, we can, we must! Surely we shall find it, and see how it looks in its new spring dress, with the new leaves of gaiety, they were off. A. D. T. leaping between them, barking an accompaniment to their mad madness."

CHAPTER VI.
The Terrible Gods.

At an upper entrance of the park the taxicab deposited them. So they met, Bec and her lover and the park and spring. Their talk rambled on irresponsibly, touching here, there, everywhere, as the talk of lovers will. And oh, the one important thing she had forgotten—her Roof of Dreams!

"Roof of Dreams? The very name enchants me!" he exclaimed.

"In a wonderful dream house, set round with daisies and pansies and geraniums and such like things, she went on to tell him of the little canvas shelter which Helen had devised for Bec's outdoor hours, an awning above a flower chair and flower boxes, erected on the roof of the apartment building."

"And now," said Philip, "let us be very businesslike, and discuss the future."

The words startled her, she glanced at her watch. "I must go. I've been forgetting." Her voice sagged. "I've been imagining that all this was real, instead of a tiny, short dream, tucked in between years and years of realism."

"Bec," he said gravely, "do you suppose that I am going to abide by any dismissal that is not of your own volition?"

She was silent.

"Until today," he went on, "I did not know but that you also, on second thoughts, dismissed me. But now I believe that your will would be to see me again. Am I right?"

Her eyes answered that.

"Then," he went on, still in that slow, sure, grave voice, "no one can prevent our friendship. I intend to see you again."

"No, no, Philip! Promise you won't try to meet me at Zelle's! It's a matter of honor to me. Promise!"

"I promise that, for I hope never to see you there again. And now will you tell me how it happened?"

She told him a brief history of her acquaintance with Zelle, of the lessons, the plans for a career. He listened with growing astonishment.

"You don't mean to say that you've been studying under her constantly for weeks?"

"Yes, for weeks."

"Look here, Bec," he began, authoritatively, "you must call it off, and right away. Zelle—well, Bittersweet Alley isn't the place for you. She rose, flushed and on the defensive. "Give up Zelle Barrajas? Indeed I'll not! If you think—"

Her words resounded in her own ears. Actually she was quarreling with him! Her hands went out to him. "How could I today?"

"You are right. We'll drop disagreements for today. But as to the future—you won't tell me where I may find you?"

"There isn't to be any future, for—us."

He did not reply. At the corner she gave him her hand, but he did not look up. Her "goodbyes" were hardly more than a choking whisper. "It's—for always," she breathed. And the crowd surged between them. That same evening Zelle Barrajas swung about at a quiet, purposeful knock; then, with a joyous start, swept forward, hatted out. "Honey, old boy! Why didn't you give your three-rap signal? Say, what's the matter, anyhow? Say, had you come to silence abruptly, blinding with hands on his shoulders."

There was no response; he was restrained and sober. And she realized what his look held. "It's come," she whispered to herself. "I always knew it had to come."

"Present! Well, what honey? When you employ that tone of voice, I can't tell whether I'm to be court-married or proposed to, and the suspense makes me nervous."

"Please tell me how you came to take Miss Kent as a pupil?"

She told him about it briefly.

He sat up with a start of final resolve, but his voice was gentle. "Zelle, it's got to come to an end."

She felt as if something within her were turning white; her very heart, like her face. But she mustered a debonair lift of the eyebrows. "An end? You've got another guess coming, sonny. I didn't want her at first, but now I've got her career on my hands, I'm going to put it through till I see her launched, believe me!"

But he shook his head. "I appeal to you; do you think that Bittersweet Alley is the place for a girl so young and utterly inexperienced?"

"You needn't be afraid," she heard her voice say at last. It sounded a long way off. "I've always thought of her—as a little lace handkerchief to be folded away in a safe. I've watched myself—my talk—I've never let her meet any of the crowd, with their raw stories, and their ways. I've sheltered her, always. Can't you trust her to me? If you can't how am I to believe that you believe in me?"

Now his gaze was full of frank, tender friendship, and then something within him seemed suddenly to give way. "Yes, Zelle, you can believe that I believe in you! I'm ready to prove it. Now that you tell me this that she is under your protection—sheltered from the things that surround her here—then I trust her to you. I have no right to say that."

"But I might ever possess to kill it before it should have—"

He added, "except—that I love her, whether she lets me or not."

Zelle's face was averted. It was a long time before she spoke. She said that if sometimes she thought that nothing could harm her anyhow. It's as if—as if—well, nothing could soil it—her face was shining down on Bittersweet Alley, but we'd all be shined up a lot by that star."

At that he did a strange thing; he kissed her on the forehead. Then he went.

Helen lingered alone over her coffee, forehead in hand.

"Matter with you, Nell?" She had not heard the doorknob, so deep was she in troubled thought. And here was Bec bustling in, more than ever cheerful.

"Good!" she greeted her cousin. "You look like a stiff breeze to blow away glooms."

"Working wonderfully, on the contrary. Mr. McNab owned today that the experiment already looked like a brilliant success."

"I always knew it would! Well, then, there's only one other problem that could give you to the point of wearing your prettiest flannel collar crooked—namely, Bec. Where is she, by the way?"

"On the roof. I suppose there must still be glooms at times, when she happens to remember the lovely boy doll that was snatched away before she had a chance to play with it."

Miss Clifton seemed to be weighing some question. "You've never described the youth to me. Do you mean that literally? Is he a boy doll?"

"Well, no. He's altogether as manly a type as you're likely to find. I've happened to meet his chief, Mr. Frost, who bears out my impressions. The boy is of fine stock, well educated, clever, and with a certain quality that makes for success—it's a poise, a quiet daring, an instinct to master the situation rather than be mastered by it. In short, he's a very dangerous variety, and I'm only too glad that I nipped matters in the bud."

"Nell Kent, sometimes you're actually crazy—ought to be confined where you couldn't do damage! You've hugged your own trouble till you can't see anything else. Just because you picked a rose that held a bee that stung your nose, you want the rest of the world in particular your own daughter, to stop picking roses, do you? For heaven's sake!"

"No, no, Philip! Promise you won't try to meet me at Zelle's! It's a matter of honor to me. Promise!"

"I promise that, for I hope never to see you there again. And now will you tell me how it happened?"

She told him a brief history of her acquaintance with Zelle, of the lessons, the plans for a career. He listened with growing astonishment.

glance was so striking that I started as if I had come upon the dead walking. At second glance there was no similarity, of course, but the shock of that instant's flash has left me a wreck ever since. And after nine years! Rescued Clifton, can you wonder that I'd give my life to save the creature on earth that I love with every breath I draw—to save her from what I have been through?"

CHAPTER VII.
"Spring Traps Helen."

The seductiveness of a warm spring day invaded Helen's office. Her secretary opened the door in response to a knock. "Yes, come in, do, Dr. Asplen," Helen said as he entered from the main corridor. "I hope you are feeling chatty. There really isn't any work in me this demoralizing day."

"I came to say that my car is at the door, and I should be glad to drop your car at your home." Looking down upon her gravely from his austere height, he might have been offering a prescription.

She smiled up at him. "It's outrageously early for me, but I'm reckless. I don't care what becomes of anybody's policy. I have no business to leave this office, but I'm going to."

He was driving his own car that afternoon, and he tucked her in beside him. Broadway checked their progress for a space; but he wore skilfully and—the river at last.

"I suppose, my dear madam, I should be looking a gift horse in the mouth to complain that this ride is the first when it might have been the seventh. Exactly six times have I stopped at your door and offered to spare you the subway jam."

"Yes," she admitted, and exactly six times have I refused. I counted them, too," she twinkled.

Steel Trade Awaits Report Of Republic Co. Earnings

OILS SEE LOSSES IN CURB MARKET

New York, October 16.—Further cuts in gasoline prices combined with reports that another reduction in mid-continent crude was imminent as a result of increased production in the Permian field at Tropy, resulted in

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, October 16.—There is no doubt but that yesterday's recovery in the stock market was brought about by short covering. Early today, however, when it became apparent that insiders in such stocks as American Woolen were using the advance to sell long stocks, professional traders began to sell stocks short. New low records from the year were made in a half dozen or more prominent stocks.

Those who went long of the stock market yesterday had many bitter things to say today about the wicked heavy offerings of the oil shares which gave today's curb market a reactionary appearance.

Standard Oil of Indiana closed a point low at 54 1-2, while most of the other active issues closed fractionally. A few, notably Gulf of Pennsylvania and Humble, recorded slight fractional gains.

General Motors was again the leader of the industrial group, more than 15,000 shares changing hands. The stock closed 1 1-4 higher at 30 1-4 after offering and bid as Liggett & Myers. The buying was reported to be for the Scheulte interests. Durant Motors dropped 2 points on a turnover of less than 1,000 shares.

The management of the capital structure of Liggett & Myers resulted in the admission of trading of $59,550 shares of new $25 par value and 1-1/2 of $30 par value on a "when issued" basis.

Interest in the mining group was confined largely to the penny shares.

That old adage that clothes do not make the man is very true—but good clothes have a lot to do with the impression a fellow creates on those with whom he comes in contact. A man's appearance is a barometer of his progress—few men who are succeeding wear shabby or ill-fitting clothes. With good clothes comes that inward satisfaction of knowing they are good—yet comfortable—Values in good clothes can always be found here—Order your new suit or overcoat today.

All Sentiment Disappears At Harding Home Auction

Washington, October 16.—That inanimate stuff which made an ordinary home here a home for a couple from Marion, Ohio—before they stepped together from senatorial prominence to the white house—has been scattered to a score of homes through the bantle of a professional auctioneer and the din of fervent bidding.

The furniture and other intimate articles in the old Harding home went over the auction block Tuesday for almost a year. Despite the impassioned plea of the sentimental bidders, who reminded the bidders of the sentiment which hung about the home and its furnishings, the crowd, eager but strictly commercial, refused to lift their offers as they followed him about from room to room.
